Editor's Preface.

THESE ANNALS have, in later times at least, usually gone by the name of the 'Annals of Clonmacnoise.' In the book itself there is nothing to show why it should be called by this name. No doubt it gives a special prominence to the history of those parts of the country on both sides of the Shannon bordering on Clonmacnoise, as Teaffa, Meath, Brawnie, Ferkeall, Annaly, Roscommon, Hymany, Moylorg, and to the families inhabiting them, the MaGeoghagans, O'Melaghlens, O'Molloys, O'Feralls, O'Conors, M'Dermots, O'Kellys, O'Roircks; and indeed the chief value of these Annals arises from the historical details given of these districts and families which are not found to the same extent elsewhere. Frequent mention is made of St. Queran, who was not only the founder of Clonmacnoise, but the patron saint of the men of Connaught, as we know from the 'Saltair na Rann'; whereas few of the other Irish Saints are mentioned and only in a passing way, if we except St. Ruadhan of Lorrha, and St. Columkille, founder of Durrow, both of which places are in the neighbourhood of Clonmacnoise. In the Censura of the Guardian of the Franciscan Convent of Donegal, prefixed to O'Donovan's edition of the 'Annals of the Four Masters,' mention is made, among the books from which extracts were made by the authors of that work, of the 'Book of Clonmacnoise.' O'Donovan thinks the reference is to the book that now goes by that name; not so O'Curry, who believes they are entirely different books, for the reason that the work used by the Four Masters came down but to the year 1227, whereas this one ends with the year 1408.

Nor is there any clue to the author's name throughout the work. He is said to be 'an authentic author and worthy prelate of the Church, that would say nothing but the truth,' 'a great Latinist and Scholler,' yet 'he could not get his penn to name the Kings of England or other foraigne countryes by their proper names but by such Irish names as he pleased to devise out of his own head.' He was Irish too, if we judge from his sympathies shown by 'the reproachful wordes which he layeth down in the ould books and which he declared of an evil will he did beare towards William Burk,' commonly known as William FitzAdelm, and which the translator will not insert in his translation 'because they were uttered by the author for the disgrace of soe worthy and noble a man as William Burk was.' Nearly all the Irish writers agree with the author of these Annals in their estimate of William FitzAdelm; indeed the passage in the 'Annals of the Four Masters,' referring to his death, seems to be but a transcript of this passage. Giraldus' estimate of him, almost equal in incisiveness and terseness to Sallust's character of Catiline, is well known; but then Giraldus is hardly to be relied on when he commends any one of his own relatives or censures those with whom he was not connected by blood.

The original work was in Irish. The translator more than once refers to 'the ould Irish book out of which he wrote,' 'to the ould Irish book which he translates, out of which many leaves were lost or stolen,' 'to certain years that are missing in mine ould Booke.' And even the whole of the book is not given by the translator: 'the ould Irish book by longe lying shutt and unused, I could hardly read, and left places that I could not read because they were altogether grown illegible and put out'; and he asks to be excused 'for not naming the King's deputies and Englishmen therein contained by their right names, for I goe by the words of the ould booke and not by my owen invention.'

The original was supposed to be in the possession of the family of Sir Richard Nagle some fifty years ago, a descendant, by his mother's side, of the translator. There was a belief that it contained certain facts tending to their discredit, which that family did not wish to have made known, and for this reason they would not allow it to be examined; but perhaps this unwillingness arose from a desire to keep secure possession of what was looked on by some members of them as a family relic.

These Annals begin with the Creation and end with the year 1408. The translator points out that several parts of the original work are missing, as from 1182 to 1199, and again from 1290 to 1299, and he shows how such books were destroyed, not merely by the chronicles being burnt by the Danes, 'but by taylors being suffered to cutt the leaves of the said books (which their auncestors held in great accoumpt), and sliece them in long peeces to make theire measures off.'

To show the value set on this book by students of Irish history, we need but mention two facts: first, that it was one of the works which the Irish Archæological Society intended to publish ; second, that very copious extracts have been made from it by O'Donovan to illustrate the text of the "Annals of the Four Masters."

The translator was Conell, or Conla, MaGeoghagan, of Lismoyne, Co. Westmeath, who, O'Clery, in his preface to the 'Succession of the Kings,' says, 'prized and preserved the ancient monuments of our ancestors, one who was the industrious collecting Bee of everything that belongs to the honour and history of the descendants of Milesius and of Lughaidh, son of Ith, both lay and ecclesiastical, so far as he could find them.' He dedicated this translation to his brother Terence Coghlan, whose family was among the last to uphold and practise the old Irish tribal customs. It was finished April 20th, 1627, in the 'Castle of Leyeuachan,' or Lemanaghan, the remains of which still exist six miles south-west of Clara, in the King's County. The original manuscript of MaGeoghagan's translation is lost, but there are several copies of it, one in the British Museum, another in the Library of Trinity College, catalogued F. 3,19, both made by Tadhg O'Daly. The latter is that from which this book has been printed. It was made in 1684. The copyist goes somewhat out of his way to censure both the author and the translator for their partiality to the descendants of Heremon, the Hy Neill, to the prejudice of those of Heber, the M<sup>c</sup>Carthys, O'Briens, and their co-relatives of the south.

Of the translation O'Curry says:—'It is written in the quaint style of the Elizabethan period, but by a man who seems to have well understood the value of the original Gaedhlic phraseology, and rendered it every justice, as far as we can determine in the absence of the original.' The copyist's introduction will remind the reader of the pompous style of composition in use among the hedge-schoolmasters half a century ago. I have printed the whole just as it stands in O'Daly's copy. The orthography is such as will lead no one astray, and if an editor begins to 'improve' on such things, it is not easy to know where to stop.

The thanks of the Royal Society of Antiquaries of Ireland are due to the Board of Trinity College, who kindly permitted a copy to be made of their manuscript for the purpose of printing this book.

READER:

I haue presumed (Courteous reader) to premonish you of some both preposterous mistakes used by the translator in this booke in Immitaçon (haply) of the prototypon or primitiue whence it was extracted and Deriued, for he being reputed a curious crittick & a good Chronicler, as certainly he professed himselfe to be & therefore noeways ignor<sup>t</sup> of the right antiquitie & just Lotaçon of the sons of Miletus of Spaine, through this voluntary Mistake, procliuiity, or partiall Inclinaçon to Heremon (of whom he Descended), the youngest sonne of the s<sup>d</sup> Miletus except Herenan & Dissonant to his scientificall knowledg), hath promiscuously & unjustly (though in way of a two late Colourable excuse he Demonstrates not onely a recantation, but alsoe himselfe to be a kind of ambedexter, neutralist or indifferant party) delt wth Heber the while in Postponeinge not only the scept and ffamilies Descended of him, but also Heber himselfe after the said Heremon and his scepts & families in all or most places of this booke, & because that either in auoyding of the noysome clam<sup>s</sup>, Inueterate grudge hatred & malice of certaine knowne persons or in Loathsomeness by alteraçon to Disorder the Industry-ousnesse of the obliedging Translator I haue inconfusedly and imutable Transcribed his work, (onely the augmenting of some marginalles for your good, nothing relateing to any dislocaçon & the compiling of a Confuser, yett according to the pages somewhat orderly index, Importunity preventing it from being alphabeticall, Whereby concerning my obliuious omission I must be contented to stand in one predican<sup>t</sup> which must be always one of the post with the translator untill my next<sup>1</sup>

TO THE WORTHY AND OF GREAT EXPECTAC<sup>ON</sup> YOUNG GENTLEMAN MR. TERENCE COGHLAN HIS BROTHER
CONNELL MAGEOGHAGAN WISHETH LONG HEALTH
WTH GOOD SUCCESS IN ALL HIS AFFAIRES.

AMONG all the worthy & memorable Deeds of K. Bryan Borowe sometime K. of this Kingdome, this is not of the least account, y<sup>t</sup> after he had shaken off the Intollarable Yoake & Bondage wherewth this land was cruelly tortured & harried by the Danes & Normans for the space of 219 yeares that they bore sway, & receaved tribute of the Inhabitants in Generall, & though they nor none of them euer had the name of K. or Monarch of the land yet they had that power as they executed what they pleased & behaued themselves soe cruell and pagan-like as well towards the ecclesiasticall as Temporalls of the K.dome, that they broke downe their churches and razed them to their very foundations and burnt their books of Cronicles & prayers to the end that there should be no memory left to their posterities & all Learninge should be quite forgotten, the said K. Bryan seeing into what rudenesse the kingdome was fallen, after settinge himselfe in the quite Governm<sup>t</sup> thereof, & restored each one to his auntient Patrimony, repayred their Churches and houses of religion, he caused open schoole to be kept in the seuerall parrishes to instruct their youth, which by the s<sup>d</sup> Long warrs were growne rude and altogether illiterate, he assembled together all the nobility of the K.dome as well spirituall as temporall to Cashell in Mounster, & caused them to compose a booke contayning all the Inhabitants, euments and scepts that lived in this land from the first peopleing, Inhabitaçõn and Discouery thereof after the creaçõn of the world untill that present, which booke they caused to be called by the name of the psalter of Cashell<sup>1</sup>, signed it wth his owen hands together wth the hands of the K<sup>s</sup>. of the five provinces, & alsoe wth the hands of all the Bushops and prelates of the K.dome, caused seuerall copyes thereof to be given to the K<sup>s</sup> of the provinces, wth straight Charge, that there should be noe credit giuen to any other Chronicles thenceforth, but should be held as false, Disannulled & quite forbidden for ever. Since w<sup>ch</sup> time there were many septs in y<sup>e</sup> k.dome that liued by it, & whose profession was to Chronicle and keep in memory the state of the K.dome as well for the time past present & to come, & now because they cañot enjoy that respect & gaine by their said profession as heretofore they and their auncestors receaved they set naught by the s<sup>d</sup> knowledg, neglect their Bookes, and choose rather to put their children to learne eng: than their own native Language, in soe much that some of them suffer Taylors to cutt the leaves of the said Books (which their auncestors held in great accoumpt, & sliece them in long peeces to make their measures<sup>2</sup> off) that the posterities are like to fall into meere Ignorance of any things hapened before their tyme.

Ireland in ould time, in the raigne of the s<sup>d</sup> K. Bryan & before was well stored with learned men and colledges that people came from all partes of Christendome to learne therein, and among all other nations that came thither there was none soe much made of nor respected with the Irish as was the english & Welshmen, to whome they gave severall Collages to Dwell and Learne In, as to the

The earnest Desire I understand you haue to know these things made me to undertake the translating of the ould Irish booke for you, wch by longe lying shutt & unused I could hardly read and left places, that I could not read because they were altogether growne illegible & put out; & if this my simple Labour shall any way pleasure you I shall hould myselfe thorough recompensed & my payne well Employed, wch for your owene Reading I have done, & not for the reading of any other Curious fellow that would rather carp at my Phrace, then take any Delight in the History & In the meane time I bid you heartyly farewell. from Leyeuanchan<sup>3</sup> the Twentyeth of Aprill Año Dñi 1627.

Starna McNevie fought a Greate Battle in Dalriada against Conyn(ge) McFewer 7 yeares after their comeing. Conyngs tower was besieged both by sea and land with 60000 men, that is to say 30000 by sea And soe many more by land, and in the end was Gotten by ffomores And destroyed. These ffomeres were a sept Descended from Cham the sonn of Noeh, that there liued by pyracie and spoyle of other nations and were in those days very troublesom to the whole world. Many Laughs and Rivers broke out in their time. Many playnes were by them made, by cutting down the woodes, and Diging the Rootes of the trees, Alsoe they erected manye Rathes, these were the only thinges of marke Don by y<sup>t</sup> sept of Clann Nevyne. In the End after longe strife and continuall vexation such as were of most account of them were Driuen out of the country by the said troublesom sept of ffomores and went Back againe to Greece where they continued the space of 50 yeares or thereabouts. Dureinge w<sup>ch</sup> time of 50 yeares there Raigned in Assiria two Monarches w<sup>ch</sup> were Lampares 12 yeares, and Pannias 38 yeares. At the end of w<sup>ch</sup> time they being overlayed by the exactions of the Gretians, and Desirous alsoe to recouer their naturall contry which at the first they did quitly posses without strife or Interruption, and soe did Enioy the same for the space of 37 yeares after under the rule of nine Kings. This sept were called ffruolge, there were 5 Brothers that were their Chieftaines, the sonnes of Dela m<sup>c</sup>Loich that first Diuided Ireland into fve partes. 1. Slane their eldest brother had the prouince of Leynster for his part, w<sup>ch</sup> contayneth from Inuer Colpe, y<sup>t</sup> is to say where the River of Boyne Intereth into the sea now called in Irish Drocheda<sup>1</sup>, to the meetinge of the 3 Waters by Waterfoord where the Three Rivers Syure, ffeoir<sup>2</sup>, and Barrow doe meete and run together into the sea. 2. Gann the second brothers parte was South Munster which is a prouince extending from that place to Bealaghconglaissey<sup>3</sup>. 3. Seangan the third Brothers part was from Belachconglaissey to Rose De Hoileagh, now called Limbricke, w<sup>ch</sup> is the prouince of North Munster. 4. Geanann the fourth Brother had the prouince of Conaught contayneing from Limbricke to Easroe<sup>4</sup>. 5. And Rorye the 5th Brother and youngest had from Easroe aforesaid to Inver Colpe w<sup>ch</sup> is the prouince of Ulster. The sayd fve prouinces

First Lynster containeth 31 Cantreds w<sup>ch</sup> are Diuided into eight Countyes. Both the prouinces of Munster seaenty cantreds which are but seauen counteyes.

Connaught 30 cantredes, six Countyes. Ulster 35 Cantredes which are 6 Countyes, and Meath eighteen Cantreds which are 2 Countyes and counted to be the 11th part of the Kingdom and for the goodness thereof was reserued alwayes for the maintanance of the monarch, and which was annexed by Kinge Twahall Teaghtwar<sup>2</sup> to the King's Royall seat of Taragh.

After makeing of which Diuision Slane their said elder Brother by the Consent and election of his other 4 Brothers was chosen King, and was the first King that euer absolutely ruled in Ireland. There were 9 Kings of them one after another whose names ensue: Slane Raigned 1 yeare, Rowry Raigned 2 yeares, Gann and his brother Geanann jointly Raigned 4 yeares, Seangan Raigned 5 yeares, Fiagha Keannnan Raigned 5 yeares, Rional als Riongall Raigned 6 yeares, Foyngen Raigned 4 yeares, and Eochy m<sup>c</sup>Eirck 10 yeares. Dureinge the saide ten yeares Raighe of the saide last Kinge Eochy m<sup>c</sup>Eircke there was noe Raine in Ireland, notwithstanding there was abundance of graine and fruite and was the Last Kinge of that septe called ffrivolge and upon them came in the people called Twathy De Dannan out of Greece too, Being a Braunch of the same stock that ffrivolge were of and were kinsmen. Dureinge the time of ffrivolge, which was 37 yeares, there Raigned in Assiria 3 monarchs to witt Pannias 7 yeares, Sosarmus nineteen yeares and Mitreus 11 yeares. Twany de danaan after they had spent much tyme abroad in learneinge nigromancy Magicke, and other Diobolicall artes wherein they were exceedingly well skilled, and in these Dayes accounted the Cheefest in the

AND FOLLOWETH THE FOURTH

WHICH IS OF TWANY DE DANANN.

The Contry being thus conquered by Twany de Danann one Newae was their first kinge and lost his Arme in that greate Battle of Maytory<sup>3</sup>, wh<sup>ch</sup> by the coning skill of his surgion and goldsmith whose names were Dyan Kight and Credyn, which were Passing skilfull in their profession, as it did well appeare by the wonderfull cure they did, for they made a siluer hand and put on their King which serued for all Interprises and purposes, and thereof he was called Nwae with the siluer hand. Dureinge the time his hand was in cure (which was 7 yeares) his kinsman Breasse was king, but he being well Recouered of his hurt was againe King of Ireland, and others to the number of 9 Kinges of that sept all whose names Doth follow :

Breasse Raigned 7 yeares. Nwaey Raigned 20 yeares and was then slaine in Moyetorye in the battle aforesaid by ffomerie where ffomeriys themselves for the most parte was slaine, and such of them as made escape from that Danger were quite Driven out of the whole Kingdom 27 yeares after the first Battle. After Breasse succeeded Loway Keyhleann (of whome Iniskihlean tooke the name) and Raigned 40 yeares. Andagha Raigned 80 yeares. Dealvoye Raigned 13 yeares. Fiagha m<sup>e</sup>Dealvoye Raigned 10 yeares. m<sup>e</sup>Koyll Raigned 10 yeares. m<sup>e</sup>Kight Raigned tenn yeares, and m<sup>e</sup>Greny 10 yeares. These last 3 beinge 3 Brothers, the sonnns of Kearmad Milvoyle were marryed to 3 sisters the Daughters of Fiagha m<sup>e</sup>Dealvoye, whose Daughters names were Banva, Foala, and Ere; now for that the said three Brothers did in some sorte square about the Gouvernment of the kingdom, there was order taken by their friends that the Eldest Brother should Raigne for the first yeare, the second for the second yeare, and the 3rd the third yeare, and soe each of the Brothers took his turne of the Gouvernment in that manner, with this promise Between them, that when any of the Brothers should be Kinge that then the Realm for that yeare should be called after the Kinge for the time Beinge his wifes name. By meanes whereof Banva, Foela and Ere are the names of Ireland euer since the 8 sonnns of Miletus of Spaine came and conquered the whole Land, whose comming you shall understand soone in the Insueinge Discourse.

But before I speake of them, It is fitt that I shall put the Reader in Remembrance as some of our Antiquarists affirme, that about this time Paris of Troye ravished and tooke away Hellen the wife of Menelaus In his one absence, & by the greate mediation and Intercession of Menelaus the peeres of Greece followed wth a greate Army and continued 10 yeares wares with the Troyans, where in a certaine Cessation & truse made by the said partyes a certaine souldier named Alea<sup>1</sup> being vacant and Idle invented Dice and tables to pass away the wearisomeness of the tyme, of whome the Dice took the name. Alsoe aboute this tyme the art of medicine was first found by Apollo, or as others affirme, by his sonn Aestulapius. Orpheus of thratia the Inuentor of musike and cheefe Musistion of the Gretians florished about this Tyme.

Haueinge thus Digressed from my History I will now Returne where I left the same.

Long before this Time Neale or Nioule m<sup>c</sup>Fenius ffearsy ancester of Clanna Miley from Scithia came to Egypt and there liued under the Gouvernment of Pharao, and when the Israellites were in Discord with the Egiptians they landed at the place neare the Read Sea called Capacyront. This Neale came to converse with them and to know whoe they were that Landed in that place. Then Aaron the High Priest of the Jewes told him that they were Jewes, and how his Brother Moyses by the Helpe of God Brought diuers pleagues on the Egyptians for theire abuses &c. Then Neale and Earon falling into more friendly familiarity & Conuersation together, Neale asked him whether the Israelites had any victuals, whereunto Earon Replied & told him that they had but very little, for they came then from the Captivity and Bondage of the Egytians, soe as it were Impossible for them to haue but little sustenance. You shall command whatsoeuer I haue, said Neale & shall haue wheat and wine at y<sup>r</sup> pleasure. Whereupon Aaron repayred to the camp of the Isaraelites, and tould his brother Moyses & the rest of the courteous entertainment offered by the said Neale to them, whereof they were exceeding glad and went to the house of the said Neale, where they were wonderfully well used to their own Contentment. It was their Chance the same night that a snake did Runn ouer the partes of the Body of a Child that was in the House whose name was Gathelus, sonn of the said Neale for which the childe was extreame sicke. The snake left markes euerywhere on his Body where it was toched, thereupon the childs said ffather procured him to be Brought to Moyses, who after long praying touched his sores with a Rod (wherewith he made a way through the Red sea) and immediately the Child was Restored to his perfect and former health, and with all Moyses said by way of a prophesye that God was pleased that noe snake or other venomous worme would euer after annoy or hurt that child or any of his posteritye and that no venomous Beast should neuer Dwell in the contry where the Issue and offspring of the Child would live, prophesied alsoe that there should many Kings, Princes, Saints and just men Descend of that child, which is the cause (as some are of opinion) that venomous beasts are not seen in this kingdome, others say that there was an Infinite number of them there untill the comeing of St. Patricke, and that they were bannished here hence, by his prayers.

After all which past Neale conplained to the Isaraellites how odious he would groe with Pharao for using any friendship with the Israellites. Moyses, Aaron, and the rest Requested Neale with his whole familie and followers to goe with them, and that if God did please to giue them the promised land they would giue him a good share thereof, & use him thenceforward no worse then one of themselues, or if he pleased to bark with them they would prouide some place for him on the seas Remote from the power of pharao, where he might quitely Remaine untill he had seen the finall end Between the Egyptians and the Isaraelites. Then they apoynted 3000 souldiers under Neale with command as admirall of their fleete. Neale sayled Back to the place where the Egyptians were Drowned in the Red Sea, where he found certainly that pharao himself, together with 60,000 footmen and 50,000 horsemen were Droned soe as there escaped none of the said number undrowned but one man whose name was Fasteus. Neale seeinge the Death of Pharao and his armye sheaked off all his feare and Determined to stay thenceforth in the Kingdome and to possese his share thereof for him and his posteritye for euer, soon after Neale Dyed, his sonne Gathelus succeeded in his place, whose accordinglye possessed the same until he Dyed and had issue Essrue, sonn of the said Gathelus, which Essre had alsoe a sonne called Srue who was sonn of Neale. Neale mac Fenius Farcy was son of Baath, whose was son of Magog, whose was sonn of Japhett, whose was sonn of Noeh, whose was sonn of Lameth, whose was sonn of Methusalem, whose was sonn of Enoch, whose was sonn of Jaruett, whose was sonn of Malaleele, whoe was sonn of Cainan, whoe was sonn of Enos, whoe was sonn of Seth, whoe was sonn of Adam.

theire coming is as followeth. In the yeare after the flood 1245 being about the 12th yeare of the Raigne of Dauid king of Isarael & Judea, Gallo the sonn of Billus king of Scithia after surnamed Miletus of spaine for his manye and great exployets, heareing of the great wars w<sup>ch</sup> the Egyptians held then with theire neighbouring contryes, being before in some Displeasure at home for the strife that grew Between him and his Kinsman for the kingdom of Scithia & being alsoe himself much given to warr, ambitious of honour & Desirous to encrease his name (as the manner of his contry was) passed out of Scithia with a number of his friendes, kinsmen & ffollowers into Egypt, where he was no sooner ariued then well entertained by the Egyptians, & in short time after did soe well aquite himself in theire seruice, that he was made Generall of theire armies & withall married the Daughter of Symedes then the Greatest prince in Egypt or Pharao as they did then commonly call theire monarch, his other Daughter was after married to Solomon, King of Jerusalem. This Symedes or Symenides by other authors is called alsoe Silagh & became soe great & mighty, that he had in his army 1200 chariots, 60,000 Horses, and 400,000 footmen.

After the Death of king Solomon & alsoe after the Departure of Gallo out of Egipt he entred with the same into the citty of Jerusalem, Ransacked the cittye spoiled the Jews, & carried away all their Treasure & Jewells with him into Egipt. Some few years before this was don, when Galle saw that his father-in-law was quiete at home and could cōmmand his neybour abroad, & after that Dwelt in Egypt 6 years or somewhat more, he tooke leaue of his friendes there and wth a number of his Depend<sup>ts</sup> did pass on Towards Parthia & encamped at the foot of a great Hill (which for good lookes sake he called after his wife's name Scota, at lenth after a long & wearisome jorney; when he had been tossed too and froe for the space of 2 years he was wind-driuen into Portugall 126 years after that king seased to rule that kingdom; Gargoris, surnamed Meliola for his skill in making of Hony being the last of them. Spaine was Diuided into prouences amongst the princes thereof, soe it was much the sooner Brought under by Gallo who in less than one yeare ouerthrew the Spaniards in sundry fights, and cheefly in 3 great battles, after which victoryes, his wife Scotsa, Pharaos Daughter dyed. You are to understand (to make the History more manifest) that Gallo was thrice married; first in Scithia to Seang Riffilar his Daughter, a great Prince in Scithia, by whome he had two sonns Begotten in Scithia which were called Don and Heragh Feura. Secondly to Scotsa Pharaos Daughter (as is afore said) by whome he had alsoe 4 sonns borne unto him in Egipt, that is to say Heber the white, Avirgin, Ire, and Colp with the sword; thirdly to Savia, the Daughter of Nicicorus, then the cheefest of Spaine, by whom he had likewise 2 sonnes which were Borne in Spaine, w<sup>ch</sup> were called Heremon and Herenan, and by that marriage he had great quiteness in Spaine all his lifetime after.

In process of time being well multiplied in numbers, he Remoued some of his company into Biscaie, then called Colteberia, where they did Edifie Brigantia and aded thereto a great Tower that was named of the builder Breons Tower<sup>1</sup>, for soe Galloes grandfather was called Breowen, & soone after some of them came into Ireland, which hapened upon this ocation. Ithus mBreowyn, sonn of him that built this Tower above mentioned, and uncle to the said Miletus, was Reputed for a wise learned and Great traoueller, hearing of the good success his kinsmen had in Spaine, followed them thither. Being met & after great joy made on either side upon ocation of ffurther speech, told them of the manners and ffassions of sundry nations that he had seen, and more ouer told them that there was an Island that stood north East of Spaine of good Report as he alledged, which if he had once seen & taken notice of he would euer after live at home with his kinsmen, set up his Rest, and take such partes as they had, upon this, within fewer Dayes after he made Ready for Ireland, went forward in his Jorney, and after his landing he made towards the three Kings of Ireland, that were the Brothers married to the three sisters whereof I haue made mention before and lay them at Oleagh Neyde<sup>1</sup> and were at variance for the goodes, treasures, and jewells, that then their father-in-law and late predecessor King Fiagh m<sup>c</sup>Dealvoy left after him, which was a great thing in these days. When Ithus came in the presence of the said Kings he was very friendly & courteously entertained, & much made of by them, he to Requite their kind fauours, told them againe in a louing manner that they ought not to Disagree in any sort, for any worldly Ritches, being Brothers & friendes, as they were, and espetially in soe much that God Dealt so bountifully with them in sending them the Great Ritches they had in hand and such good soyle that yealdeth such abundance of all good Things meet for their sustenance of man, as wheat, Hony, fish, and foule, not onely suffitiently for their one maintenance, But alsoe plentifull for the Relieueing of many of the nib<sup>rs</sup>, Being therewith all very temperate of itselfe & right meet for men to liue in at ease.

These words were soe carefully marked by the Brothers, and struck such feare into them that as soone as Ithus tooke his leaue of them they sent certaine of their friends priuily to murther him by the way, as he Passed on towards his ship, thinking by that foule fact to preut the worse, If he or any other by his means & instigation would couet soe good a Contry as he took theirs to be, & soe in time troble them for their one, when noe such thing had been looked for or meant. Ithus in that manner was ouertaken, grieuiously wounded and the most part of his men slaine. The place where this murther was committed to this day is named Moynithe<sup>2</sup> which is to say, Ithus his plaine, and at lenth with such of his men as were left him alieue, he gott him a shipbord all Bloody as he was, and soe sailing towards Spaine he Dyed by the way, when the ship landed his dead Corps was brought all mangled as it was before his Kinsmen, whoe upon the Report made by his men of their ill usage in Ireland took the mater uery Griueously and presently swore the Reuenge thereof; when they had thoroughly consulted of the cause, they agreed of all hands to make ready for Ireland, & soe leaueing Gallo well settled in Spaine 40 of the chiefest of them in 30 shippes made towards Ireland, Galloes 8 sons being of the number, and the greatest in authoritye & Reputa<sup>co</sup>n: but being come towards the shore about the 17th of May 2934 and the year before the birth of our Sauour Jesus Christ the sonn of God 1029 as Collogh O'More setteth forth who was a uery worthy Gentleman and a Great searcher of antiquities, but Philip O'Sullivan<sup>1</sup> in his printed book Dedicated to Phillip the 4th, King of Spaine, sayeth that they came in the yeare before the birth of our Saviour 1342 which is from this present year 1627 the number of 2966 yeares, Laestheness being then the 33rd monarch of the Assirians, they were kept of a long time from Landing for Twathy de Danan that were then Ruler of Ireland did use such witchcrafts, sorcerye, and other magick arts and Incantations that thereby they Did procure such tempest, stormes, and continuall contrary winds, that Diuers of the principle of them as Donn, Ire, and fferanan, three of the Brothers, were lost & Drowned, wth others of the best sort to the number of 100 besides Gentlewomen, Gentlemen, & others of less Reckoning. Some say that Donn was Drowned at a place in the Weast called Teahdoyne<sup>2</sup> or Don his house. They alsoe say that the picts heareing of y<sup>e</sup> great number of widowes in Ireland, came & married the Relict widows of the said Drowned persons & couenanted with the sons of Miletus that if they had failed Issue male, y<sup>t</sup> then the ofspring of Miletus should inherit their Contry, which accordingly came to pass after a long space, for in Defect of their Issue one fergus<sup>1</sup>, the king of Ireland's son, was sent ouer into Scotland & was Inuested as King thereof; they were called Picts of a certain oyntment they used to paint their faces wth all; their land in English is called pictland<sup>2</sup>, in Irish cμiocha cμuēneach.

After the Landing of the sonns of Miletus & Receaveing such Losses, they made forwardes towardes Taylten<sup>3</sup> where they were met with Tawthy de Danan & fought with them & after a cruell and bloody Bataile which lasted almost from morning untill night twathy De Danan were ouerthrone to their utter Destruction, where m<sup>c</sup>Quoill, m<sup>c</sup>Keght and m<sup>c</sup>Grenie their 3 Kings with their three wiws Ery, Fodla, and Banva were slaine.

This people Twathy de Danann were most notable Magicians and would work wonderfull things thereby; when they pleased, they would they would trouble Both sea and Land, darken Both sonn and Moone at their pleasures. They did frame a great broad stone which they called Lya Fail<sup>4</sup>, or the stone of Ireland, by their art and placed the same at Tarragh, which by Enchantment had this property: when anyone was borne to whome to be a King of Ireland was predestinated, as soone as the party soe Borne stood upon this stone forthwith the stone would giue such a shouting noyse that it was hard from sea to sea, throughout the whole Kingdom, which presently would satisfie the party standing on the stone, and all the Rest of his future fortune to the Right of the Crowen, this stone remained a long time in the King of Ireland's pallace of Taragh, whereon many Kings and Queens were crowned untill it was sent ouer into Scotland by the King of Ireland with his sonn ffergus, who was created the first King of Scotland on that stone, and for a long time after all the Kings of Scotland receaued theire Crownes thereon untill the time of King Edward the first, King of England, whoe tooke the same as a Monument from thence into England in the wares between him and Scotchmen & placed it in Westminster abby, where many a King of England haue been likewise Crowned thereupon, & is to be seen there amongst other monum<sup>ts</sup> this day.

These Twathy de Danan ruled in Ireland for the space of 197 years, under the Gouvernement of 9 Kings, During w<sup>ch</sup> time there Governed in Assiria seuen Emperors or Monarchs, to witt Mitreus 15 yeares, Tulanes or Tantanes 22 yeares, Tarileus 40 yeares, Thineus 30 yeares, Dercilus 40 yeares, Euphalus 30, and Loasthenes 12 yeares.

Soon after this Conquest made by the sonns of Miletus theire Kinsmen and friendes, they Diuided the whole Kingdome amongue themselues in manner as followeth: But first before they landed in this land, Tea the daughter of Louthus, that was wife of Heremon, Desired one Request of her husband & kinsmen, wh<sup>ch</sup> they accordingly Granted, w<sup>ch</sup> was, that the place shee would most like of in the kingdom should be for euer after called after or by her name, And that the place soe called should be euer after the principle seat of her Posteritie to liue in, and upon their landing she chose Leytrym<sup>1</sup> which is since that time called Taragh, where the Kings pallace stood for many yeares after, and which she caused to be called Tea-mur, mur in Irish is a town or pallace in English, and being joined to Tea maketh it to be the town, pallace, & house of Tea. Iriell the prophet afterwards succeeded as king, whoe did cut down and make smooth 12 plains, to witt, Moyrched<sup>1</sup>, Moyelly<sup>2</sup>, Moylawra<sup>3</sup>, &c. He made alsoe seven principle rathes. He fought a Battle at Ardanmaith<sup>4</sup>, where Sorge m<sup>c</sup>Duff was slaine, another at Teanmay<sup>5</sup>, where Eochy Eigeann, king of Fomoraghes, was likewise slaine, and the third alsoe he fought at Loghanmoye<sup>6</sup>, where Loway, Roch m<sup>c</sup>Maffias was slaine, and Dyed himself at Moymwaye<sup>7</sup> when he had Raigned 10 years.

Ethrial his sonn succeeded him and made seven playnes that is to say Mayessil<sup>8</sup>, &c. He was slaine in the battle of Rocean<sup>9</sup> by Convoyle or Convallo m<sup>c</sup>Heber the white, after he Rayned 10 years.

Convallo or Convoyle m<sup>c</sup>Heber was the first absolute king of Ireland of y<sup>e</sup> Munster men. He did overthrow the sept of Heremon in 25 batles, and at lenth was slaine himself in the battle of Eawyn-Vacha<sup>10</sup>; he raigned 20 years and was slain by Tygernwas the sonn of king Erial aforesaid.

Tygernwas was king of the kingdome. He overthrew the offspring of Heber the white in 27 Battles within one yeare, whereof the field of Clonkwase<sup>11</sup> in the conty of Teffa<sup>12</sup>, the battle of Kille<sup>13</sup> where Rochork m<sup>c</sup>Gollann was slaine, the battle of Commor<sup>1</sup>, the ouerthrow of Kliew<sup>2</sup>, where ffearagh (of whome Carnefery tooke the name) was slaine with the Rest of the battles which were very long and tedious to particularize, in soe much that almost he mad an end of the scept of Heber and Besides his fortunate and lucky success in Battles he was the first that caused standing cupes to be made, the Refining of gold & silver, & procured his goldsmith that dwelt near the Lyffie (named Ighdonn) to make gold & silver pines to put in men & womens garments about theire neckes, and alsoe was the first that ever found the Dyeing of coulered<sup>3</sup> cloathes in Ireland. Many famous laughs and pooles sprung in his tyme, as Lough Foyle, Lough Sileann<sup>4</sup>, &c. He Dyed a famous, victorious, and worthy king when he had Raigned 30 years.

Cearmna finn and his Brother Sovarke the sonns of Ebrick m<sup>o</sup>Ire were the first kings of Ireland that euer Raigned of the house of Ulster<sup>5</sup>. They Divided the whole kingdome amongst themselves in 2 parts. One of them Dwelt in Doncearmna, the other at Donsovarke; the one was king of the south, and the other king of the north, w<sup>ch</sup> Division Remayned soe for the space of 100 years. King Kearmna fought a field where Eochie Edgohagh was slaine and was himself soone after slain by Eochie Fewerglass, king of Fomaraghes when they had nobly raigned 20 years.

Eochie Fewerglass son of king Convallo tooke upon him the Government of the kingdom, he Broke<sup>6</sup> 7 Battles upon his enemies, that is to say the overthroe of Lwacherdea<sup>7</sup> and the field of Dorymlehan<sup>8</sup> where Smirgol was slaine, with 5 other fields, he was 12 yeares king and then was killed by Fiagha Lawrynnne.

Fiagha Lawrynnne was then king, he gave Divers overthroes to the sept of Heber and amongst the rest that of Gathly<sup>1</sup> is not to be forgotten where m<sup>e</sup>Fevis m<sup>e</sup>Eochy Fewerglasse was killed, another where Laugh Eirne stands now, which soon after Broke out. In this tyme the river Lawryane<sup>2</sup> did first break out of whome he took that surname. He Raigned 8 yeares, and at last was slaine by Eochy Momo of the scept of Heber, of whome Munster was called or named.

Eochy Momo raigned 10 years and was slain by Enos Olmoye.<sup>3</sup>

Enos Olmoye was king and a valiant one. Strangers made many Invasions in his time, but he coragiously withstood and Drove them out with the cost of their Bloods and lives by giueing them many bloody ouerthroes and covered Divers fields with heapes of their slaughtered Bodies, that underneath they could scarcely get Buriall for them; he was of the scept of Heremon and was slaine by Enna Argheagh, whoe was of the scept of Heber when he had rayned 6 years.

Enna Argheagh was king and was the first king that caused silver Targets to be made in this land and Bestowed abundance of them bountifully on his friends and nobilities in generall. He raigned 24 years and was slain by Rogheaghty m<sup>e</sup>Moyne.

Roheaghty Raigned 11 years & then was slain by Sednie Art of the house of Ulster.

Seadna Art Raigned 18 yeares & was slaine filthily and unnaturally by his one sonn Fiagha Finnsgohagh.

Fiagha Finnscohagh succeeded his father and was sur-named fññsgohagh of the abundance of white flowers<sup>4</sup> that was in his tyme; and was slaine by his one trusty friend, Mownemon. The ould Irish proverb fell out truly with him, that inasmuch as he unnaturally killed his one father, another in whome he Reposed fatherly trust should kill him. He Raigned 24 years.

Mownemon was the first king that ever Divided goldin chains fit to be worn about men's neckes and Rings to be put on theire fingers, which was then in great use, he raigned five yeares and then Died. He was of the sept of Munster.

Aldergoid his son succeeded him, in his tyme rings of gold were much used on men and women's fingers in this Realme; he was slaine by Allow Fodla<sup>1</sup> of the house of Ulster after he had Raigned 9 yeares.

Allow Fodla of the house of Ulster was king of Ireland & of him Ulster tooke the name. He was the first king of this land that euer kept the Great feast at tarragh called Feis<sup>2</sup> Tarach which feast was kept once a yeare, whereunto all the kings friends and Dutifull subjects came yearly and such as came not were taken for the kings enemies, and to be prosecuted by the law & sword as undutifull to the state. This king was soe well learned and soe much given to the favor of Learning that he builded a faire pallace at Tarrach, onely for the learned sort of this Realm to Dwell in, at his own peculiar cost & charges, of whome he was soe much againe beloved and Reverenced that ever after his house stocke and family were by them in theire Rimes and Poems preferred before any others of their equalls of the Irish nation; alsoe at Divers Times after when the nobilitie of Ireland had proclaimed y<sup>e</sup> utter abollishinge and Bannishing<sup>3</sup> of poets out of the land they were protected & maintained from tyme to tyme by the Issue of this king, as on a time one Moyle Cova,<sup>4</sup> king of Ulster, who was of his Discent, kept and maintained in his oné house for the space of a whole year the number of 360 Irish poets; 6 of his Children succeeded him one after another as kings of this land without any other comeing betwixt them, which good never hapned to noe other before him. He Died at Taragh a famous king rich learned wise, and generally well beloved of all men, and Raigned 40 years. His right name was Collawyn.

Fineaghty his eldest sonn succeeded him, he was soe called of the abundance of snow that fell in his time, & then Dyed in Moyniss<sup>1</sup> in Ulster, when he raigned 20 yeares.

His brother Slanoll was king after him, During whose Raigne the kingdom was free from all manner of sickness. It is unknowen to any of what he Dyed, but dyed quietly in his bed, & after that he Remained 5 years Buried. His body did not rot, consume, or change collour, he raigned 26 years.

Geye Ollogagh, king Ollowe his third son, raigned after his said Brother. Observers of antiquity affirm of him that the Conversations of his subjects in general in his tyme was as sweet Harmony to one another as any musicke, because they liued together in such amitye, concord, and attonem<sup>t</sup> amongst themselves that there was noe Discord or strife heard to groe between them for any cause whatsoever. He founded Doncowole Sivrille now called (for avoiding of bawdiness) Kellis, he raigned 18 years.

Fiagha 4th son of king Ollow was the next king that succeeded after his said Brother & raigned 8 yeares, he was a good king, though I cannot recoumpt any notable thing that happened in his time.

Bearngal m<sup>c</sup>Geye, Grandchild of the said king Ollow, was king 12 years, in his time there was continuall warres which brought great scarsitye of victuals throughout the whole Kingdome, he was slaine by his one cousin germond Olleal, king Slanols sonn.

Oillell was king 15 yeares and then was slaine by Siorna m<sup>c</sup>Deyn of the sept of Heremon, whoe was he that violently tooke the Government of the septer of this land from the sept of Ulster.

Siorna (after slaying thus the king) was king himselfe, in whose time Lawgire m<sup>e</sup>Lowagh brought in Fomoraghs into Ireland. King Siorna went to meet them at the Bogg of trogy in Kyonnaghta<sup>1</sup> with all the forces of the Kingdome, where a cruell Battle was fought between them with such vehemensy that almost both sides perrished therein, with ouerlabouring themselves & especially the Irish nation with their king alsoe. Loway & Kisarme king of the Fomoraches were slaine, others write that king Siorna was slain by Rohaghty Roha m<sup>e</sup>Roayne, when he had Raigned 21 years, it is alsoe reported of him that he liued an outlawe one 100 years together before he was king and that onely against the Ulstermen.

Rohaghty was the first king that ever used coaches wth 4 Horses in Ireland. He raigned 7 years and at last was burnt by wild fier<sup>2</sup> at Dunsovarkie. He was a very good king.

Elim Olfinsneaghty was king for one yeare, he was soe called because it raigned snow continually that yeare. he was slaine by Giallcha m<sup>e</sup>Oillealla Olcloin.

When first Giallcha was made king he tooke hostage of every of the chiefs of the 5 provinces. He raigned tyrannically 9 years, and was in the end slain by Art Imleagh of the sept of Heber.

Art Imleagh was king and builded 7 Downes or paleces for himselfe to Dwell in them to Recreate himself. After 6 years rainging he was slain by Nowafinnaile.

Nowafinnfaile of the sept of Heremon was K. and was slaine by Breasry sonn of K. Art Inleagh after he had reigned 13 years.

Breasry raigned king 10 yeares, in whose time Fomory came again into Ireland; but he overthrew them in many batles and did quite expell them out of the kingdome. He Dyed at Carne anlwayne<sup>3</sup> and was much Lamented in generall.

Eochy Ophagh, captaine of the former kings Guard, he was of Corkelaye,<sup>1</sup> usurped the kingdom & name of king thereof after the former kings death and obtained the same but one year. There was great faintness generally ouer all the whole kingdom once euery month during that year, and was slain by Finn m<sup>c</sup>Braha.

Finn was king 20 years and was then slaine by Sedna Anerie, son of king Breasry.

This Seadna was a worthy noble king and the first that Rewarded men with cattle in Ireland, many other good things he did, he raigned 14 yeares and was then slain by Symon Breachus.

Symon Breachus ats Breake, was king 6 yeares and was then slain by Dwagh the foster son of Dea; he was of the sept of Heremon.

Dwagh raigned 8 yeares and was then slain by Moriegh Balgragh. Kimboy m<sup>c</sup>Finton in his time was king of Ulster, which was about 450 years before the Incarnation.

Morieagh raigned but one yeare when he was slaine by Enna the red, sonn of king Dwagh.

Enna reigned 5 yeares and then Dyed at Slievemis wth many of his people.

Loway his son was king and raigned 5 yeares and was then slaine by Syrelaw m<sup>c</sup>Finn.

Sirelaw was king, & was so called because he had such long handes that when he would stand or be a horseback he could without stooping reach to the ground, and was slaine by Eochye Fiemoyne and by his brother Conynge.

These 2 brothers Eochy & Conynge raigned jointly 5 years, the kingdom of the north part was king Conynge's share, and of the south part king Eochies proportion. King Eogye was slaine by Loway mac Eochy na Keasse, uair chear.

Lowaye reigned 4 yeares.

Conynge Begeglaigh Raigned 7 yeares, he was soe called because he was never knowen to be afraid in his life & was at last slain by Art m<sup>c</sup>Lowaye.

Art sonn of king Loway raigned 6 years and was slaine by Dwagh Layer.

Oilleall the sonn of K. Art succeeded his father in the kingdome and after he had raigned 9 yeares, he was slaine by Argedwar Fiagh & Dwagh m<sup>e</sup>Fiaghy with their partakers.

There was a battle fought between Argedwar and Fiagh where argedwar was ouerthrone, another they fought at Breauie<sup>1</sup> where Fiagha was slaine by Eochy m<sup>e</sup>Oillealla Finn, Dwagh lagragh with the progeny of Heremonn did gather all theire forces together and Drew Argedwar to soe narrow a plung that he was Driven to goe to sea 7 yeares, During which time Eochy m<sup>e</sup>Oillealla Finn was king. At last Argedwar & Dwagh accorded and made peace & friendship; Then joyning theire forces together they came unknowen to the king upon him. The king being then at the feare of Cnockany,<sup>2</sup> where they slew the king with many of the nobilities of Munster, and raigned but 7 years as aforesaid.

Argedwar succeeded him and was a valiant king. He raigned 26 yeares and then was slaine by Dwagh Lagragh and by Loway Laye.

Dwagh then after reigned 10 years & was slaine by Loway.

Loway was K. 4 yeares and was slaine by Hugh Roe macBayorne of the house of Ulster.

Hugh Roe was king 7 years Dihorba m<sup>e</sup>Dimaine of Usneagh in Westmeath then called Meath was K. 7 years & Kimboy m<sup>e</sup>Fintan of Eawinn Macha 7 years. These three being of the House of Ulster raigned together, at this time Eawinn Macha and Ardmach were first founded by one Macha that was Daughter to the s<sup>d</sup> K. Hugh Roe, which happened after this manner:

There were 3 kings of Ireland at once. All were kinsmen, Hugh, Dihorba, and Kymboye aforesaid, and because they liued together in some contention for the kingdome, for their better peace and security there was order taken for their agreement in their Government that each of them should rule 7 years orderly one after another without Impediment of any of the rest, & for making good the same, there were 7 magisians, 7 poets, and 7 Lords of the principal of the Ulster nobilitie chosen out to see that agreement firmly kept, the magisians by their art to work against him that the same agreement would break what they could, the poets to chide and scould at them in their Rhimes & writings with as great a Disgrace as they might Invent, which was a thing in these days much feared<sup>1</sup> by the Irish nation, and the seven principal lords to follow & prosecute the violator with fier & sword. But all this was not necessary for the preservation of their agreement for they did agree without any square at all, untill at last K. Hugh Roe was drowned in Easroe (of whome that easse or falling of the water took the name<sup>2</sup>) leaueing no issue behind him but one only daughter named Macha Mongroe (in Irish Macha wth the red tresses of haire). She soone after her father's Death challenged her father's part of the kingdome due unto her by as her proper Right, which was denied her by king Dihorba & king Nymboye saying that it was unfit that a woman should Govern the kingdom where the issue male had not failed, and that it was never seen before. Whereupon she challenged them both to give to yeeld her battle, w<sup>ch</sup> they were redy to doe and did accordingly where K. Kimboy was ourthrone, & K. Dihorba slaine. Then shee took upon her the Governm<sup>t</sup> as Queen & behaved herselfe very honorably untill K. Dihorba's 5 sons named Beaha, Brasse, Beaaghah, Wallagh, and Borbeasse, being nobly given challenged their fathers part of the K.gdom as Queen Macha did before, w<sup>ch</sup> she Denied them and said as shee got their Right by the sword they should not haue theirs but by the sword too: wh<sup>ch</sup> as soone as they knew they Gathered together their forces and fought a strong battle against her, where they were put to flight and after all Driven to the wilderness of Conaught for their Reliefe & safety. Soon after that overthrow given she married king Kymboy being her own neare kinsman and of the contrary faction, after w<sup>ch</sup> marriage she Disguised herself like a poor woman all alone (when shee understood that king Dihorbas sonns went to Conaught to seek them out) & followed, and whom she at last found in a wild and Desert wood in y<sup>e</sup> west of Conaught all alone, none with them but themselves, siting by a fire, and as it should seem mightily afraid, Dressing a wild bore for their sustenance. When she came near seeing her a poore woman (as shee shewed to be) they Desired her to come neare them and enquireing of her many things & newes, such as she could tell without offence, which shee in a suptile manner Did, and after long-talk & speeches the eldest of them looking very earnestly on her and having better view of her, said to the rest of his Brothers, that she was a very faire woman well eyed & limed, and that he would needs use her carnally, & with that carried her presently aside from them, where he began to abuse her; & when she found him there all alone, she took a hard gripp upon him and Gaue him a fall, and neuer suffered him to rise until shee did bynd him fast enough both hand and foot by meere strength, and soe left him there and came herselfe where the rest of the Bretheren were, after leaveing him close corded in a Bush. They Inquired where she left the man that went with her into the wood. He is (said shee) ashamed to shewe his face before you after committing soe vile a fact as to abuse himself wth a poore old & beggarly woman. Let him be nothing ashamed (said they) for we will do the same act as he Did, she seemed to be sorry thereat, and went with the first of them a contrary way & used him as shee did the first, and soe the rest after one another and when they were bound then shee Brought them to one place, & conveighed them to a friends house of hers, that was hard by, and from that brought them to Ulster, all the best sort desired to put them to Death presently as malefactors and offenders of the kingdome, but the Queen s<sup>d</sup> it would not be soe, for it was (said shee) against the Royalty of a prince and the Laws of armes that men of their condition should be put to death, but yett (said she) they must for theire offences committed build for me the Rath of Eawyn<sup>1</sup> Macha as a Ransome reproachful for them to pay & convenient for me too take, which place shall be called after my one name and shall be always the Royall seat of the kings of Ulster, which work was presently taken in hand by the said prisoners, & for the speedier finishing thereof, she compelled the Munstermen to help them, & at last was finnishd with wonderfull Celerity, and in the same shee & the kings of Ulster her successors kept their pallace and place of Residence for the space of 855 years after. It was built 450 years before the birth of Jesus Christ and was rased and broken down again for spight to Clanna Rorie by the three brothers the three Collaes sonns of Eochy Dowlen, who was sonn of king Carbry Liffechar. Her husband king Cymboye died 7 yeares before this Queen, and she Ruled the land with Discretion, liberality, & severity as her occasions did Require, was in the end slaine by Roheaghty Rihdearg and was much commended for her noble mind, virtue, and courage.

Roheaghty Rihdearg was a good king and after he had reigned 9 years he was Diservedly slaine by Owgany More, son of king Eochie Bway whose in and from his childhood was nourished and well fostered by King Cymboye & Queen Macha, as well as if he had been their one naturall child. The manner in those dayes was to bring up noblemens children, especially their friends, in princes and great men's houses, & for ever after would call them fosters<sup>2</sup> and love them as well as their own natural father.

Owgany More was K. after he had reuenged the death of ing of K. Cowhagh, & the other of his Brother K. Lagery lorck. K. Cowhagh was Invited to a feast by his s<sup>d</sup> nephew Lawry, and there was treacherously burnt together with 30 Irish princes in his one house. After he had raigned 17 years King Cowhagh little regarded the Irish proverb which is, that one should never trust a Reconciled adversary ; this murther was Committed on the Barrow side at a place called Dinrye<sup>1</sup> or Beanrye and Diuers of the nobility were murthered there as aforesaid. Some say that the City of Roome was first founded about the beginning of this precedent Ks. Raigne ; alsoe Finn M<sup>c</sup>Baicke reigned then in Eawinn Mach as K. of Ulster.

Lawry Loyngeagh after thus murthering his uncle succeeded as K. of the kingdom, the province of Leinster took the name of him, for in the time of his Banishment he brought Diuers forriners into this land that were armed wth a kind of weapons w<sup>ch</sup> they brought wth them like pikes or speares w<sup>ch</sup> in Irish were called layny,<sup>2</sup> & were neuer before used in Ireland, of whome the leinster men took the name, and soe did Leinster itselfe ; he raigned 14 yeares & was slaine by Melge son of king Couhagh. Connor Moyle m<sup>c</sup>fuhie raigned then K. of Ulster twelve years.

Melge was king 12 years and was slain by m<sup>c</sup>Corb. logh Meilge<sup>3</sup> tooke the name of him.

M<sup>c</sup>Corb was king 6 years & was slaine by Enos ollow, about this time was borne that famous Poet of the Romans Virgill in a village called Anais not far from Mantua.

Enos was 7 years K. and at last was slaine by Irero, sonn of King Meilge, Neere about this tyme Pompeius was ouercome by Julius Cesar and driven to take his flight into Egypt.

After King Enos succeeded as K. Irero, who raigned 6 yeares, & was slaine by Fear Corb.

Fear Corb was K. 7 yeares, and was slaine by Conlye Keywe<sup>1</sup> ats the fine, sonne of Irero.

Conlye succeeded in the Government of the kingdom 4 yeares and then quitely Dyed in hes Pallace of Tarragh.

Oillill his sonn succeeded next in the government of the Kingdom and Raigned 25 years & at last was slaine by Adamar.

Adamar was K. 5 yeares, & was slain by Eochy Altleahan.<sup>2</sup>

Eochy was king 7 yeares & was slaine by ffergus Fortawyle.<sup>3</sup>

ffergus was king 12 yeares & was slaine by Enos Twyrmeagh<sup>4</sup> at Taragh.

Enos succeeded & was a very good king. He left issue 2 Goodly and noble sonnes Enna Aynagh & Fiagha Firvara, the most part of the Kings of Ireland Decended of his son Enosa, & the kings of Scotland for the most part Desended of Fiagha, soe as the great houses in both those kingdoms Derive their pedegrees from them, he was of the sept of Heremon & Raigned 32 years & then Dyed quietly at Taragh in his bed.

Conell Collawragh<sup>5</sup> raigned 5 years & was slain by Nia Sedawyn<sup>6</sup>.

Nia was K. 7 years & was slaine by Enna Ayneagh.<sup>7</sup>

Enna Ayneagh succeeded him (being next unto him) as K. of the Realm & reigned 10 years, & was slaine by Criowhann Cosgragh.<sup>8</sup>

Criowhann was K. 4 yeares, & was slaine by Rowry m<sup>c</sup>Sitrick auncestor of the Clanna Rowrys, as of Magenyces, o<sup>r</sup>fferall, o More &c.

Rowrye raigned 70 years, Of him are Desended many great houses In this kingdom & in Scotland. There were many K. of that house & were the Right auncient Ulster men, & were in those Days accoumpted second to none in the kingdom. The three cheef houses in Ireland were Conn, Araye, & Owen, I mean of the Irish Nobility, that is to say the house of Cashell in Munster, the house of Crwacha in Connaught, and Eawyn Macha in Ulster. Between which 3 houses the Crown of Ireland Rested a great while. Rowry Dyed at Argedgryne<sup>1</sup> after many great acts were don by him, & was of Great fame for his long & peaceable Government, he had issue 4 sonns vidzt., Congall Claringneagh<sup>2</sup> Breasall Bodivo, Ross, and Ita.

Ionamar was the K. w<sup>ch</sup> succeeded Rowry, he raigned 3 yeares & was slaine by Breasall m<sup>c</sup>Rowry als Breassall Bodivo.<sup>3</sup>

Breasall was K. 10 years, in his time there was such a merren of Cowes in this land as there were noe more (then) left alive but one bull and one Heifer in the whole kingdom, which Bull & heifer liued in a place called Gleann Sawasge,<sup>4</sup> he was slaine by Loway Lwange, son of king Ionamar aforementioned. Some say that the monarchy of the Romans began about this seasonn, & that Julius Cæsar after that he had Conquered the Gales and Brittans was their first Emperour, & made the Brittans stypendiaries, since whose raigne there hath been Emperors wth them.

Congal succeeded Loway in the kingdom, he did many notable acts of Chivalrye as there are Great volumnes of history written of his hardiness & manhood. He was slaine by Dwagh Dalta Dea when he had Raigned 15 years.

Faghtna Fahagh was K. 24 yeares and was slaine by Eochy Feyleagh. Some of our writers affirm that our Saviour Jesus Christ, the onely Begotten sonn of God almighty, was borne of the spotless Virgin Mary about the 16th year of this kings raigne, & that then Connor, sonn of y<sup>e</sup> said king Faghtna was king of Ulster, Oillill M<sup>c</sup>Ross king of Connaught, Finnell m<sup>c</sup>Rosse k. of Leinster, Cowry m<sup>c</sup>Dary was king of one of the Munsters, and Eochy M<sup>c</sup>Lughta was king of the other province of Munster.

Eochy Feyleagh<sup>4</sup> was king 12 years & then Dyed at Taragh, he was father to y<sup>t</sup> famous (but not altogether for Goodness) woman Meaw Crwachan<sup>5</sup> & to 4 other Daughters, as to Clehra of Munster, Ailby, Eihyn &c. But the lady Meaw was of Greater Report then the rest because of her great boldness, Buty, & stout manlyness in Giving of battles, insatiable Lust, her father allowed her for her portion the province of Connaught, & shee being thereof possessed grew soe Insolent and shameless that shee made an oath never to marry wth anyone whatsoever that would be stayned wth any of these 3 Defects and Imperfections as she accompted them vidz<sup>t</sup> wth jealousy for any Letchery that she should committ, wth unmanliness or Imbecillitie, soe as the party could not be soe bould as to undertake any adventure whatsoever were it never soe Dificult, & Lastly she would neuer marry with anyone that feared any man living.

Eochie Oireaw<sup>1</sup> was the next K. & Brother to the former K.; reigned 15 years & was then slaine & burnt by lightning fire from heaven.

Edersgel More succeeded, he reigned 5 years, and was then slaine by Nuada Noaght.

Nuada Noaght<sup>2</sup> was the next K. after Edresgell. He Raigned half a year & was slain by conry m<sup>c</sup>Edersgell in the battle of Cliah in the Country of Idrona.<sup>3</sup>

Conary was K. 60 years & was burnt by Anckell, K. of Wales, his sonn by night in Brwyne da Dearg.<sup>4</sup>

Jesus Christ was crucified in his time, but some of the antiquarists afirm that our Saviour Jesus Christ was borne in the Raigne of K. Eochy Feyleagh, & not in the reign of Faghna fathagh & crucified by Tiberius Cæsar in the raigne of Edersgall, K. of Ireland.

It is thought that the nobility of Ireland obtained their libertie afterwards from the progeny of Vaghan more, Cosgragh m<sup>c</sup>Connor reigned K. of Ulster 3 years. Cowchoullen<sup>5</sup> the Heroicke champion of Ireland and Heber his wife Dyed. The Champion was killed by the sons of Calletin of Connaught in the 27th yeare of his age. The Report goes that he killed a Ravenous and uenemous Dogg<sup>6</sup> when he was but the age of 7 years & was alsoe but of the age of 17 years when he surpassed all the Champions in Ireland in the Disention between them for the famous prey called in Irish tane Boe Cwailgne.<sup>7</sup>

Loway Srewdearg<sup>1</sup> succeeded K. Conary in the kingdom, he reigned 25 yeares & dyed of a Conceat he tooke of the death of his wife Queen Dervorgill. St. Peeter the Apostle, after he founded the Church of Antioch came to Rome about this time to Expell Symon Magus thereout, & there held his sea Apostolike 25 years untill in the Last yeare of Nero he was hanged wth his feet upwardes & head Downward, also St. Paul was beheaded. Iriell Glunwar son of Conell Kearneagh reigned king of Ulster this time. Also Marchus the Evangelist befor the Death of St. Peeter wrote his booke of the Holy Evangelist, & sent it to St. Peeter to Alexandria, & was ordayned Bishop of that Place by Saint Peeter.

Connor Auraroe<sup>2</sup> was K. next to K. Loway & was slain by Criohann m<sup>c</sup>Loway and reigned but one year. Anacletus was Pope 20 years.

Criowhan Raigned 16 years, it is Reported that he was brought by a Fairy Lady into her pallace, where after great Entertainment bestowed upon him & after they tooke their pleasure of one another by carnall knowledge shee Bestowed a gilted Coate wth a sume of Gold<sup>3</sup> on him as a token of love & soone after Dyed. St. Andrew was Crusified about the fourth year of this K.'s raigne, & alsoe St. Philip the Apostle was likewise Crucified & stoned to Death in the citty of Hera-polim in Phrigia.

About this time Mary Magdalen Dyed in the yeare of our Lord from the Incarnation 63. Domitian, the son of Vespation the Emperour was soe eloquent in speaking he needed noe advocate or oratour to set forth his cause but himself, & made poesyes in Greek & lating, he was held to be soe virtuous that of all the People in general he was called amor et delitium humani generis, he made the amphitheaters of Rome & slew 500 wild beasts in them.

Fiagha Finn of whom Dalviagha is called reigned 3 years and was slain by Fiagha Finnolay about the yeare of our Lord 95.

Fiagha Finnolay was king 7 yeares & was then slaine by Elym m<sup>c</sup>Conragh. The s<sup>d</sup> Fiagha was of the sept of Heremon.

Elym was K.<sup>2</sup> 20 yeares & was slaine by Twahal Teaghtwar<sup>3</sup> sonn of king Fiagha Finnolay & was left fatherless in his mothers wombe, shee being the K. of Scotlands daughter, who soone after her husbands death fled secretly into Scotland, where she was Delivered of a goodly sonne called Twahall, whoe was by her brought up in all princely qualities untill he was 20 years old, at w<sup>ch</sup> time he came into Ireland accompanied wth his said mother & few others of his friends, where after his landing in this kingdom one Fiachra Cassan and others euil contented with their estates to the number of 800 chosen men mett him and Presently saluted him as K. of the Realm, & soe went forward with the said Company & fought a battle against K. their successions, for mine excuse I say that the ould Irish book out of w<sup>ch</sup> I writt this is soe ouertorne & rent that the Characters of the very letters are quite lost in some places, soe as I must be content to translate what I can Read, and undertake that the succession of the monarchs is truely translated & agreed upon by all the Irish Cronicles of the K. dom. Here I find that St. John the apostle & Evangelist in the 78th year after the passion of our Saviour Jesus Christ & 98 of his own age Dyed at Ephesus. Pope Clement with an anchor tyed to his neck throne into the sea by the Emperor Trajan.

Butt now let us Returne to our History; When K. Twahall was thus established in the quiet Possession of the Crowen & kingdom, & had brought the whole K. dom into his subjection, he kept the Great feast of Taragh Called feis Tawra,<sup>1</sup> whereunto all the nobility of Ireland men & women yonge & ould came, & after banqueting the K. being merry among his nobles wth a Company of chosen men for the purpose, enjoined all the nobility & caused them to sweare by the sonne & moone, and all other oathes which they then had in use, never to gainsay himself nor any of his posterity, or that would linally succeed him in the government of Ireland, & to Disclaime all their one tytles & Interests unto the premisses for euer, as long as the land of Ireland would be Compass'd with the seas, & that none of them or any of them would make claim to the Crowen or any of their heires and posterityes, notwithstanding their Rights thereunto were as Good as his, soe as if their posterityes had then after Groon more potent & of Greater abilitie than his, notwithstanding their potency they should be quite excluded from the tyme of that oath for euer from claiming any (Right) or title thereunto, & that they should suffer him & his heirs & successors quite to enjoy the Crowen for euer, & doe him and them all services due to a king, which oath was duely & voluntarily sworn by them & every one of them one after another.

At that time Eochye Anchean was K. of Leinster & was suiter to one of the K. of Irelands daughters named Darynna, whose request was presently Granted, whereupon the marriage after the heathen manner was concluded with such Royalty as belonged to their greatness. Soon after the said marriage the K. of Leinster brought her to his own house of Naase, & when the nobility of Leinster saw their Dutchess soe Deformed they were very grievous at it, Reprehending their K. for making such a Choyse, the K. of Ireland having a fayrer Daughter & better nurtured & brought up. At which Reprehension & mistaking the K. was very sorry & said y<sup>t</sup> he would goe back to the K. & crave his other Daughter in marriage, and withall would mak his Majestie believe, that his other Daughter was Dead; w<sup>ch</sup> he accordingly told & did, whereupon the K. Immediately Granted his other Daughter to the said K. Eochye, wth he accordingly married & brought home to his house of Naase afores<sup>d</sup>.

When Darinna saw her sister ffyher (for soe shee was called) come upon her in that nature, shee of very spight, jealousy, & shame Dyed out of hand, Because shee conceived soe much sorrow thereat, soone after when the heavy newes of his Daughters Death & his own Deceit came to the kings eares, he was much Grieved, & gathered together all his Royall army & forces, with whome the king in his one person marched towards Leinster to be Revenged on them, the Leinstermen seeing themselves unable to Resist the K<sup>s</sup> power & fearing to be held as traytors to the Crowen, did advise their K. to submitt themselves to the K. of Irelands clemency & submissively to Cry for mercy at his hands, w<sup>ch</sup> he at their Request did, whereupon the K. of Ireland well Pondering or weighing the Grievousness of that fact ordered that the king of Leinster & all the Inhabitants of that province for the time being for euer should henceforth yield & pay yearly to himselfe, his heires, and successors for ever in Recompense of the s<sup>d</sup> offence the number of 150 Cowes, 150 Hoggs, 150 Couerlets or peeces of Cloth to couer beds withall, 150 Cauldrons, wth 2 passing Great Cauldrons consisting in Breath & Deepness five fists for the kings one Brewing, 150 Couples of men & women in servitude to Draw water on their backes for the said Brewing, together with 150 maides with the K. of Leinsters one Daughter in the like Bondage & servitude. All which was accordingly paid yearly to the s<sup>d</sup> king Twahall & his sucesors for the time being for the space of about 500 years until K. Fineaghty fleacagh his time, who for the Great Reverence he bore to St. Moling<sup>1</sup> Lauchra (a man famous for holiness of life) at his request in a learned sermon he made in the s<sup>d</sup> K. Fyneaghties presence, of the unjustness of y<sup>t</sup> taction, was content of his Bounty and devotion to the said Saint to Remitt it for euer after, this was paid by y<sup>e</sup> Leinstermen for & dureing the raignes of 40 kings & monarchs of Ireland from the yeare of the Incarnation of our Lord 134 to the year of the said sermon 693 which fine in the Irish tongue was called Borohua,<sup>2</sup> which as soone as it was taken up, and Divided into three partes, whereof one was to the Connaught men, & another to those of Uriell,<sup>3</sup> & the third to the K. of Taragh and sept of the O'Neals, because the said three tribes or septs among whome the said Borohua was Divided were Dessended of the said K. Cahire himself slain and Buried neare the river of Boyne.

Conn Kedcahagh having thus slaine K. Cahire, he succeeded himself, & was more famous then any of his auncestors for his many victoryes & Good Government, he was called Conn Kedcahagh of a 100 battles Given by him in his time, he is the Common auncestor for the most part of the north of Ireland except the Clanna Rowries and the sept of Lauthus, son of Ithus. He had 3 goodly sonnes, Conly, Crienna, & Artemar, and three daughters, Moyne, Saw, & Sarad; Saw was married to the K. of Munster, by whom shee had many sonns, as the auncestors of the Macarthyes, o'Bryans, o'Kervells, o'Mahons, & divers others of the west part of Ireland, By w<sup>ch</sup> meanes they have Gotten themselves to that selected & Choyse name much used by the Irish poets at the time of their Comendations and prayses called Sile Sawa w<sup>ch</sup> is as much in English as the Issue of Saw.

Owen More als Moynod<sup>1</sup> warred upon him a long time, he was king of Munster & was soe strong that he brought the K. to Divide with him & to allow him as his share from Esker-Riada,<sup>2</sup> beginning at Dublin whereupon the high street is sett, & extending to Athkleyh Mearye<sup>3</sup> in thomond, Owen's share was of y<sup>e</sup> south w<sup>ch</sup> of him took the name Lehmoye<sup>4</sup> or Moyes half in Deale, K. Loway was K. 18 years and was slaine by Fergus m<sup>c</sup>Canyne.

Cormack was absolutely the best king that euer Raigned in Ireland before himselfe. He wrote a Book, entitled Princely Institutions, which in Irish is called Teagasg Ri (τεαγασγ ρι)<sup>1</sup>, which Booke Contaynes as Goodly precepts and morall Documents as euer Cato or Aristotle did euer write, he was wise, Learned, valiant, & mild, not Given causelesly to be bloody as many of his auncestors were, hee Raigned magestically and magnifitiently<sup>2</sup> 23 yeares or as som others write 40 years, in the 90th yeare of his age Dyed. He was the first that euer believed in God<sup>3</sup> in this K.dome, & because he Refused to adore the Golden Calfe w<sup>ch</sup> was then worshyped as God & for saying that he would sooner worship the artificer that made the Golden Calfe than the Golden Calfe itselfe, & that the Goldsmithe was a worthyer Creature then itt, and therefore Rather to be adored, for which the Priest of the Golden Calfe being heavily Displeased wrought such meanes by the K. as he made a Salmon bone stick fast in his throat untill it choked him, & soe Dyed in one of the K.'s mannor houses called the house of Cleiteagh<sup>4</sup> near the River of Boyne.

Eochie Gunnall Raigned one yeare & was then slaine by Loway.

Carbrye Liffeachair,<sup>5</sup> sonn to K. Cormack (to whome he Dedicated his book of Princely Institution) succeeded Eochy & raigned 17 years, others say that he raigned 26 years, & was slaine at Gawra<sup>6</sup> in a battle called the Battle of Gowra, this is about the Incarnation of our Lord 267, neere about which time the three sonns of king Carbreigh killed the valiant champion of Leinster called Enos Gaybwaifeagh nephew to king Conn Kedcahagh for killing 2 base sonns of K. Of Colla Wais are Desended the m'Donnells of Scotland with many other Irish-Scotish men. Colla Meann had little or no issue at all, & of Colla da Krioch there are Divers septs as the Maghmahones, Magwyres, O'Kellies of Imany, O'Maddens, O'Neaghtyns, the m'Egan elder than Madden or Neaghten. Near about this time or soon after in the year of our Lord 319 St. Martyn Bishopp of Turren or towers in France, & uncle of St. Patrick of Ireland was born.

Moreagh Tyreagh after he had Banished king Colla Wais into Scotland & his brothers with 300 men only in their Company raigned 13 yeares & was slain by Cayluoth m'Crouvarie of the house of Ulster.

Cayluoth was king but one year when he was slain by Eochy Moymean.

Criowhann was K. 26 yeares & was then slain by his own sister Monyfinn Daughter of Fyr, Shee was wife to the former K. & thinking to Get the K. dom to one of her own sonns, shee Gave a Potion mingled with Poyson to her one Brother king Criowhann, & fell out quite contrary to her intent<sup>2</sup> and expectation, for after the K.'s Death the kingdom & Crowen came to the hands of Neale the youngest sonn of K. Lagery, sonn of king Neale, succeeded after his Cossen Germon, to the former king & in the 4th year<sup>2</sup> of this kings Raigne St Patrick the apostle of Ireland, &c was sent ouer by Commission of Pope Caestine whoe was the 43rd Pope of Roome, to convert the land from paganism to Christianity; But he did not Land heare untill after the Death of Cælestine in the first yeare of Sixtus his successor, in the 9th year of the raigne of Theodosius the yonger in Anno Domini 425 (432<sup>2</sup> Rather).

By St. Patrick Ardmacha was Edified & made the Metropolitan Sea of Ireland, together with all other Bushop seas in the K. dome in such convenient Places as he thought fitt. Because all the former Ks were all heathens, I will write their ensuing kings apart from them. All the heathen K.'s y<sup>t</sup> ever governed this land from the beginning of the world until the coming of Saint Patrick in number were 136, whereof 9 were of Clanna Nevie, 9 other kings of Twaha de Danann, & the rest of Clanna Miletus or of the issue of Miletus. Some writers say that St. James Zebedius ye apostle came to this land: others say that Palladius Bushop was sent there by Pope Cælestine befor St. Patrick but he had not such good success,<sup>3</sup> for the Conversion of this land as St. Patrick had, for he converted to faith but 5 parishes onely w<sup>ch</sup> were in Leinster, & as he was Returning to Roome from Ireland Dyed<sup>4</sup> in his voyage in Pictland. St. Patrick the Archbishop knowing thereof and being in his minority in Ireland, was sent over for their conversion againe, whereof K. Lagery had intelligence by his

his coming to Ireland. Pope Celestine died 13th July, 432.

Magitians y<sup>t</sup> were familiar with the Devill, that St. Patrick would come into the K. dom, & withall they made the K. believe that all the subjects & Inhabitants would be Ruled by him, he would be a means to Destroy and subvert the Gouvernment of the K. dom & succession, & bring all into a Confusion, the king being a plain dealing credilous & easy man of beleefe Gave Credit thereuntoe & Commanded that such a man (speaking of St. Patrick) should not be suffered to land in the kingdom & that noe body should give Creditt to his wordes & Doctrine, whereupon the most part of the subjects of the kingdom were vigilant that he should not land upon their Landes, & at last St Patrick came in at y<sup>e</sup> Coast of Wickloa in Leinster, where he was strongly Resisted by the K. of Leinster, who was son-in-law to K. Lagery; St Patrick attempting to come ashore, one of the subjects of Leinster in the Resistance they made ag<sup>t</sup> St Patrick Landing, strock Manton (one of the clergymen y<sup>t</sup> were with St Patrick on the teeth & took 4 of his teeth away) with a troe of a stone that he made him toothless, for Mantan in Irish is as much as toothless in English. Whereupon St Patrick & his clergy cursed the haven soe as from that time to this day there is little or noe fish caught there.<sup>1</sup>

St. Patrick after his landing thought best to have his first Recourse to the K of Dalnary in Ulster, with whome he was in servitude as before. But the king of Dalnary understanding thereof & consulting with his Deuill what was best to doe (for Deuills in those dayes were conversant with men) whoe advised him, that it were better & more Worthy for him to burne himself in his own house than to be Ruled by one that was his own bondman before. The K. listning to the wordes of the Deuills put his jewels about him, & in the midst of the house was burnt,<sup>2</sup> together with all his movables w<sup>ch</sup> St. Patrick seeing, amongst other voyages he tooke in Ireland, he went to the kings pallace of Taragh<sup>3</sup> where K. Lagery was. The K. by his magitian (that was famelier with the Deuill) knowing of y<sup>e</sup> saints coming, made one of his men (named Cronnmoyle) to lay himself dead on the ground in the St's passage with his face & head all besprinkled with Blood, & a woman under his head (to make the Saint believe at the time of his passage by that the party was dead, and that she would soe tell him, & withall desire him to Revive him from the Dead to the end the party would make noe answer to the St's calling, & that thenceforwards there should be no Creditt given him). Whereupon St. Patrick aproaching the kings Pallace, & passing by the supposed dead, asked the woman what ailed the dead man. She tould him that he Dyed of a fall he gott & prayed him if his prayers were of any force, that he might be the mean to Revive him to life again, & St. Patrick asked the mans name and being told thereof, knowing by Divine inspiration of the falsehood of the matter, Called him & prayed God that all should fall out ill with this man accord- to his Disert. When y<sup>e</sup> woman stirred him this way & that way shee could not make him stir, & was found stark Dead<sup>1</sup> by the miracles of St Patrick.

Then after he asked the king to Receave Baptism of him & become a Christian, which the king absolutely Refused & Compared his magitians with St. Patrick, saying that they cou'd work more wonders than hee, & therefore worthier to be Believed, & after long comparisons between them in presence of all the people St. Patrick ouercame the Magitians & by the help & power of God ended boisterous Whirlewyndes & Earthquakes to terrifie the king and people to the end by terrour to make them believe, notwithstanding all which the K. was so obstinate that he would not Receave Baptism, but faynedly<sup>2</sup> by mouth onely untill at Last the Queen<sup>3</sup> being much terified by these strange sights tould the St. that the K. was ready to Receave baptism ; but the St. knowing that this was for Dissimulation & fear cursed the K. and his posterity for ever ; & humbly besought God of his Infinite power that none of that Kings Posterity should euer after inheritt the Crowen of Ireland. The Queen hearing the curse prayed the St. that it might stand with his pleasure to auert that curse & that it might not light on the issue<sup>1</sup> then in her womb ; to whom he Replyed & said that he was content that it should soe stand with Gods Pleasure, that the s<sup>d</sup> curse might not fall upon the issue<sup>1</sup> then in her womb, untill the Issue had Deserved it by speaking or Doing something against St. Patrick.

Now wee will leave speaking of K. Lagery untill we come to the place where wee ought to make mention of him ; & follow St. Patrick to Dublin<sup>2</sup> where he was receaved by the Senate & people thereof wth great Reverence & welcome, to whom hee promised (after they receaved Baptism of him) that masses & mattins with holy orders would remaine & be in that towen for ever ; and after many & innumerable miracles don by him, as were too long to Resite the Hundreth part of them, he Dyed in the 123 yeare of his age ; others say he liued not long, but my authour whose written booke of him is no less than 300 yeares written, sayeth that his age was noe less. Some say he was a Welshman, others a frenchman of Brittanie in france. Butt howsoever he was Desended of Brutus, as by his genelogy is set forth in his booke shall appeare to anyone that shall be Desirous to know the truth. Hee was borne in a village called Taburna neer Emptor<sup>3</sup> Town in the south of England. The ffrenchman sayes that he was of his Country, the Scottchman affirmeth him to be Dermott, seeing in what perplexity the nobleman was in, besaught him that hee might be pleased to lend him his black horse, & that hee would make his Repaire to Greally da Phill,<sup>1</sup> where he hard K. Twahall to have a meeting with som of his nobles, & there would present him a whelps hart on a speares head, instead of Dermots hart, and soe by that means gett access to the K. whom he would kill out of hand & by the help & swiftness of the horse saue his one life whether they would or noe. Dermott listing to the wordes of his foster-brother, was amongst two extremityes, loth to refuse him & far more loth to lend it him, fearing hee should miscarry & be killed, but between both he Granted him his Request, whereupon hee prepared himselfe & went as he was Resolved, mounted on the s<sup>d</sup> black horse, a hart besprinkled with blood on his speare, to the place where he hard the K. to bee; the K. & people seeing him come in that manner supposed it was Dermotts hart that was to be presented by the man that rode in post hast; the whole multitude gave him way to the K., & when he came within reach to the king as though to Tender him the hart, he gaue the K. such a deadly Bloe of his speare, that the K. Instantly fell downe Dead in the midst of his people, whereupon the man was besett on all sides & at last taken & killed, soe as speady news came to Dermot, who Incontinently went to Tarach, & there was crowned K. as St. Queran Prayed & Prophetied before.

Dermot m<sup>c</sup>Cervell began his raigne Immediately after king Twahal was killed, & rained 20 years from the beginning of the raigne of K. Dermot to the death of Hugh m<sup>c</sup>Ainnreagh 36 years, dureing which time there rained in Ireland the number of 7 kings, vidz<sup>t</sup> Donell, ffergus, Boydann, Eochy, Boydann, Airmire, and Hugh his sonn. Dermot was not about 7 months K. when St. Queran dyed in Clonvickenose when he Dwelt therein but seven months before in the 33 year of his age, the 9th of September. His fathers name was Beoy, a Connaught man & a carpenter. His mother Darerca, of the issue of Corck m<sup>c</sup>ffergus m<sup>c</sup>Roy of the Clanna Rowryes, he in his Childhood liued with his father & mother in Templevickinloyhe in Kinaleagh<sup>1</sup> until a thief of the Contry of Affaly stole the one cow they had, w<sup>ch</sup> being found, hee forsooke together with his father & mother the said place of the stealth fearing of further Inconvenience; he in the mean time earnestly Intreated his parents that they would please to give him the Cow, that he might goe to school to Clonard<sup>2</sup> to Bushopp Finnann, where St. Columbkil, Columb (M<sup>c</sup>) Criowhann,<sup>3</sup> Colman<sup>4</sup> of Lynnealae, St. Boyhinn, & Divers others were at school, which his parents Denied, whereupon he resolved to goe thither as poore as he was without any maintenance in the world. The Cow followed him thither with her calfe, & being more Given to the care of his learning than to the keeping of the Cowes, having none to keep the Calfe from the Cowe, Did but draw a<sup>3</sup> strick of his batt between the Calfe & Cow, the Cow could not thenceforth come noe nearer the Calf then to the strick, nor the Calf to the Cow, soe as there needed noe servant to keep them one from another but the strik. But w<sup>t</sup> doe I speak of his miracles which are soe innumerable as would fill a whole volume, which was a rare thing in anyone of his age, when he was Dying he desired his monkes, that they would bury his body in the little Church of Clonnvickenos & stop the doore thereof with stones & let nobody haue access thereunto until his companion Keyngynn or Keyvinn had come, which they accordingly did, But St. Keyvinn dwelling at Gleann dalock in Leinster then, it was reveled to him of the death of his deare & loueing Companion St. Queran, whereupon he came sudainly to Cluonvicknose & finding the moncks & servants of St. Queran in their sorrowful & sad Dumpes after the Death of their said lord & Master, he asked them of the Cause of their sadness, they were soe heartless for Greef as they gaue noe answer & at last fearing he would grow angry, they tould him St Queran was dead & byried, & ordered or ordayned the place of his buriall should be kept without access untill his Coming, the stones being taken out of the doore, St. Kevinn entred, to whom St. Queran apeared & remayned Conversing together for 24 hours, as is very confidently Laid Down in the Life of St. Queran, & afterwards St. Kevin Departed to the place of his one abiding, left St. Querin buried in the said little Church of Clonvickenois.

But K. Dermot most of all men Grieved for his death in soe much y<sup>t</sup> he grew Deaf & could not heare the Causes of his subjects, by reason of the heauiness & troublesomnes of his braines. St. Columb Kill<sup>1</sup> being then Banished into Scotland, K. Dermot made his repaire to him, to the end he might work som meanes by miracles for the recouery of his health & hearing & withall tould St. Columb how he assembled all the Phisitians of Ireland & that they could not help him ; Then said St. Columb mine advise unto you is to make your Repaire to Clonvickenois to the place where y<sup>r</sup> Ghostly father & friend Saint Queran is Buried, & there to put a little of the earth of his grave or of himselfe in your Ears, w<sup>ch</sup> is the medisine w<sup>ch</sup> I think to be most auailable to help you, the K. having receaved the said instructions of St. Columb took his Journey Imediately to Clonvicknose & finding Enoy Mac Eloysie (who was abott of the place after St Queran) absent he spoke to Loway then Parish priest of Clonvickenois & tould him of St. Columbs Instructions unto him whereupon Priest Loway and K. Dermott fasted & watched that night in the little Church where St. Queran was buried, & the next morning the priest took the bell<sup>1</sup> that he had (named then the white bell) & mingled part of the Clay of St. Queran therein with Holywater & put the same in the kings eares, and Imediately the K. had as Good hearing as any in the kingdom, & the whole sickness & troubles of his braines ceased at that Instant, which made the K. to say, ir fearuad an ni oo ni an clog opuin, w<sup>ch</sup> is as much to say in English, as the Bell did doe us a miraculous Turn, which bell Saint Lowna convoyded with him to the church of ffoyrie<sup>2</sup> where he remayned afterwarde. K. Dermott bestowed great Gifts of Lands on Clonvicknois in honour of St. Queran for the Recouery of his health.

King Dermott to mak manifest unto his subjects of the K. dom his magnificience apointed a sergiant<sup>2</sup> named Backlaure wth a speare to Travaile through the kingdom wth power to break such doores of the nobilities as he should find narow in such manner as the speare could enter into the house thwartwayes or in the breadth of the doores. The sargeant travailing to & fro' with his Directions putting in execution the kings pleasure in that behalfe by breaking of either side of such Doors as he could find unfitt for that purpose, untill at last he came to the house of one Hugh Gwary in Imaine in Connaught, where being desired by those of the house to enter in the absence of the said Hugh, the sargiant said, he could not bring in his speare as he ought. Noe, s<sup>d</sup> they of the house, wee will break the doores of either side & make it in such manner as you may bring in your speare as you Desire, which they accordingly did, the sargiant haveing the Doores broken, entred & feasted with them, & soone after Hugh Gawrie came to the town & seeing his Doore broken he asked who broke it, & being tould that it was Backlaure the K<sup>s</sup> sergiant he entered the house in a Rage, & without much adoe Killed the sargiant presently and tooke his flight himself to Roadanus<sup>3</sup> abbot of Lohra<sup>4</sup> who was his mothers Brother, thinking for his sanctitye & meanes, to secure himselfe from the K<sup>s</sup> furie for killing his sargiant.

Rodanus sent his said nephew to the K. of Wales, who was his well-wisher, & one in whome hee reposed Great Trust. The K. of Ireland hearing of the killing of his sargiant by Hugh Gwarey, caused narrow search to be made for him, & understanding that he was sent to the K. of Wales, wrote to him, that he should send him back, or Refusing soe to do, that he wth all his forces would go ouer to him, & Destroy his K. dom, & Remaine there untill he had found Hugh Gwary, which the K. of Wales perseaving sent him back to Roadanus the abbott againe; When king Dermott understood how he was sent ouer he prepared to come to Lohra wth a few of his guard & in his coach came to Lohra afores<sup>d</sup>, & sent one of his men to know where Hugh Gawry was. The man looked about him & could see none but Roadanus, that sate in his accustomed chaire or seat where he did used to say his prayers, under whose feet or neer adjoyning he Caused a hole to be made in y<sup>e</sup> floore, for Hugh Gwary to rest in, whereoff no body had knowledg but Roadanus himselfe & one more that carried him his meat at the Times of Refections. The K. seeing the man brought him no tydings, he entred himselfe & was Confident; Roadanus being Inquired of the place where Hugh Gawrey was, would not lye but tell truth as was his Custom, the K. accordingly entred & saluted him with harch salutations of Bitter & pinching words, such as were unfitt to be spoken to such a holy and virtuous man, saying that it did not belong to one of his Coat to shelter or keep in his house one that Committed such a fact as to kill his sargiant y<sup>t</sup> was Employed in the execution of his Instructions, & prayed that there might be noe abbott or monk to succeed him in his place in Lothra. By God's grace, s<sup>d</sup> Roadanus, there shall be abbots & monkes for euer, & there shall be no K<sup>s</sup> Dwelling in Tarach from henceforward, when they had thus bitterly spoken, the king asked where Hugh Gawry was, I know not where he is said Roadanus if he be not where you stand, for soe he was indeed Right under the K<sup>s</sup> feet. The K. thinking he spoke in jest departed, and being out of the house thought with himselfe, that the holy man spoke truth & that Hugh Gwarey was under the place where he stood, & sent one of his men in again with a pick-ax to Digg the place & to bring him out by force. As soon as the man came to the place, he struck the earth with the pick-axe, his hands Lost all their strength on the sudaine in such manner as the party could not lift the pick-axe from the Ground, then he cryed mercy & Besaught Roadanus his forgiueness & Remission wth his benediction which Rodanus accordingly gave him & kept the man thenceforth with him in the habitt of a monke, the K. seeing him not Returning entred himselfe & caused the hole to be digged where he found Hugh Gwarrie, whom he carried Prisoner to tarach.

Roadanus seeing himself violently abused & bereft of his kinsman sent for others of the Church & followed the K. to Tarrach, & there craved Hugh Gawry of the K., which he absolutely Refused; After supper the K. with the nobles of his court & prelates of the Church went to bed, & about midnight the K. being heauily asleep, dreamed that he saw a Great Tree that Rooted Deeply in the earth, whose lofty top & braunches were soe high & broad that they came neere the Cloudes of heaven & that he saw 150 men about the tree, with 150 broad mouthed sharp axes cutting the tree, & when it was cut when it fell to the earth the Great noyse it made at the time of the falling thereof awaked the K. out of his sleep, w<sup>ch</sup> Dream was Construed, Interpreted, & expounded thus, that this Great Tree thus strongly Rooted in the earth, & branches abroad, that it Retched to the very firmament, was the K. whose power was over all Ireland and that the 150 men with sharp axes cutting the tree were these prelates saying the 150 Psalms of Daud, that would cut him from the very Rootes of his Destructions & fall for euer. When the morning came the K<sup>s</sup> nobles & prelates arose, and after the Clergyman had done with their prayers they besaught the K. again to enlarge unto them Hugh Gwairye, which he did as absolutely refuse as hee did before, and then Roadanus & a Bushop that was with him tooke their bells that they had, w<sup>ch</sup> they rung hardly, & cursed the K. & place, and prayed God, that no K. or Q. ever after would or could Dwell in Tarach, & that it should be waste for euer wth out Court or Pallace, as it fell out<sup>1</sup> accordingly. the skies, & Dispersed them in every place in Ireland & Scotland; which she presaged herself that shee would beare a sonn whose instruction & sermons in the Catholique faith would be throughout the Realmes of Ireland and Scotland. Hee was borne the 17th of the Ides of December on Thursday in a place called Gortann,<sup>1</sup> & as soon as he was borne he was brought to that venerable & worthy priest Crwinnechan m<sup>e</sup>Kellaghan, who christened<sup>2</sup> him by the name of Columb, to whom God by an angel Revealed, & desired him to norrish & foster him, & not to trust him to none else & alsoe to keepe him to Learning, which the Priest accordingly did.

When he came to age to be put to schoole he went to schoole to ffynann of Moybile<sup>3</sup> where he had Good success in his learning, from thence he went to schoole to German,<sup>4</sup> and after he remained a while there he Departed & went to St. ffynan to Clonard. There was a course held among them at Clonard, that the schollers should by Turns Grind their corn wth a queran Dayly, & when it came to St. Columbes turne to take that work in hand, then an angel did handle it for him, w<sup>ch</sup> was signe that he was in Greater Estimation with God then the rest of the schollers, which were many in number. It was shewed to St. ffynann that two sonns did apeare and shew their Rayes in Clonard, the one shewed like gould, the other like silver. The golden sunn seemed to shine in the north, which give light to Ireland & Scotland of the north, which St. ffynan expounded to be St. Columb; The other of the Colour of silver apeared neare the riuier of Synan that it gave light to the midst of Ireland, which St. ffynan did likewise expound to be St. Queran, who would shine there wth the vertues of his good life. from Clonard he went to Movie Clarineagh, where he Remained but a fortnight.

Cainneagh<sup>1</sup> & Cowgall with Divers others were there, & as they were conversing together one of the Clergy enquired what thing each of the scholars were most Desireous to have in his Church that would be Dedicated to him. St. Querans<sup>d</sup>, I had rather have the [church] full of monkes & Religious persons to help to say mattins and even song. Cainneach said I had rather to have my church full of good books to leave to my Posterity for their Instructions. I had rather, said Cowgall, to have my body full of diseases & pains & the bodyes of my Convent, that they and I might be subject to the spirritt, & Lastly St. Columb said that hee had rather have his church full of Gould and Silver to found & build churches & houses of religion & to adore the Relicks & shrines of Saints that they might be in the Greater Reverence with Posterity. Then said Movie (ats Merlinn) I gather & prognosticate unto you that the successor of St. Columb shall be the rightest of any of you all in Ireland & Scotland.

Hee Departed from thence & made his Repaire to K. Hugh m<sup>e</sup>Ainmereagh (to whom Saint Columb was a neere kinsman<sup>2</sup>) and dwelt then at Dirry. When St. Columb was come to the Kings Court, the king of his great bounty and affection he did bear to St. Columb for his affirmityes sake Graunted & Dedicated unto him the Town of Dery<sup>3</sup> with the appurtenances; Soon after St. Columb sent some of his monkes & people to the ajacent or adjoining woodes to cutt wattles for to build a House there to Dwell in, who being met with y<sup>e</sup> Lord of the wood Did speak some Distastefull wordes to them for coming thither without his Lisense, whereof his People gave St. Columb intelligence, whereupon he gave som of his servants the seed of beare to be carried to the oner of the wood in satisfaction of the watlings and timber, & withal wished the servants to bid the partie to sow the Beare in the earth notwithstanding the time was past midsummer then, Ulster. There reigned of K. Hugh his race as monarchies of this kingdome nine kings as shall be shewed when I come to the Place where Remembrance ought to be made of them. There were many other Princes of Mobrey besides the said kings, & behaved themselves as becommed them, & because they were nearer the Invasions of the Land then other septs, they were sooner Bannished & Brought lower then others. The o'Kellyes of Brey was the chiefe name of that Race, though it hath manye other names of by-septs, which for brevityes sake I omitt to particulate, they are brought soe low now a Dayes that the best of the Chroniclers In the kingdom are ignorant of their disents, though the o'Kellyes are soe common every where that it is unknown whether the Disperst partyes in Ireland of them be of the familie of o'Kellyes of Connaught or Brey, that (scarcely) one of the same familie knoweth not the name of his one great-Grandfather, & are Turned to be meere churles & poore laboring men, soe as scarce there is a few or noe parishes in the kingdome but hath some one or other of those Kellyes in it, I meane of Brey.

To Colman the other sonn of K. Dermot was alsoe allotted Claynn Colman, of whome there hath been seven Monarches in Ireland, beside the kingdome of Meath that they held still for many hundred yeares as superiours thereof, their Power was latter then the o'Kellyes because they were farther from Invassions, Bloodshed, & Banishments then y<sup>e</sup> others. Dublin to the Danes, where an infinite number of them were slaine, and tooke the forte of Dublin where hee remayned three-score nights, that hee made the Danes that they drank noe other drink dureing the said space but the saltish water of the seas untill they were driuen at last to yeald to king Moyleseachlin his one desire dureing his raigne, which was an ounce of Gold out of every garden and craft in Dublin yearly at Christmas to the king, his heirs and successors for ever.

983.—Erard m<sup>c</sup>Coyssie<sup>1</sup> cheef poet of Moyleseachlin and all Ireland died in Clonvickenois very penitently. This man for his devotion to God and St. Queran had his residence in Clonvickenois, to the end he might be near the church dayly to hear mass, and upon a night there appeared an Angle unto him that reprehended him for dwelling soe neere the place, and told him that the paces of his journey comeing and goeing to heare mass dayly would be measured by God, and accordingly yeelded him recompence for his paines, & from thence foorth m<sup>c</sup>Coyssie removed his house a good distance from Clonvickenois to a place among boggs to this day called the place of m<sup>c</sup>Cossyes house, from which hee did use daily to repaire to Clonvickenois to heare mass as he was wardned before by the angle. Before m<sup>c</sup>Cossye fell to these devotions king Moyleseaghlyn of his great bounty and favour to learning and learned men bestowed the revenewes of the Crown of Ireland for one yeare upon m<sup>c</sup>Cossye, who enjoyed it accordingly, and at the yeares end when the king would have the said revenewes to himselfe m<sup>c</sup>Cossye said that hee would never suffer the king from thenceforth to have any part of the royalties or profits, but would keep all to himselfe whether the king would or noe or lose his life in Defence thereof. Whereupon the king challenged m<sup>c</sup>Cossye to fight on horseback, which m<sup>c</sup>Cossye consented willingly to doe, though hee knew himself unable to resist the valourous and incomparable hardy hand of king Moyleseachlin, whoe was computed to be hee neuer had his peere amongst them all, though some chroniclers of the kingdome made comparisons<sup>1</sup> between him and Conn Cedcahagh, Conairey more, and king Neale of the nine hostages. Yett hee in regard of the state of the kingdome when hee came to the government thereof was judged to beare the bell away from them all. At his first entry into the kingdom the whole realme was overrunn and overspread by the Danes every where, the churches, abbyes, and other religious howses were by them quite Razed, and Debased, or otherwise turned to vile, base, servile, and abominable uses. Most of all, yea almost all the noblemen, gentlemen and those that were of any account were turned out of their landes and liveings without any hopes of recovery or future redress; Yea some of the best sort were compelled to servitude and bounden slavery; both human lawe and Godes feare were set aside. In summe, it was strange how men of any fashion could use men as the Danes did use the Irish men at that time. King Bryan Borowa was a meet salve to cure such festred sores, all the phisick in the world could not cure it else, where in a small time he bannished the Danes, made up the churches and religious houses, restored the nobilityes to their auntient patrimonies and possessions, and in fine brought all to a notable reformation. At lenth in the yeare of our Lord God 1007 the 22nd of march being good ffryday hee assembled together all his forces to give battle<sup>2</sup> to the Danes at Clontarffe, and on the other side Brwader Earle of the Island of the Orcades called together and assembled all the Danes of Denmark out of all parts and kingdoms that owed them any service to that place as Generall and captain of the Danes, where there was a bloody battle between them fought at Clontarffe aforesaid. Brwader himself with his thousand men in shirtes of maile were slaine, the rest of his army were both slaine and drowned in the sea. Moyleseachlin, after king Bryan was thus slaine, succeeded againe king of Ireland and reigned 8 years, dureing which time hee fought 25 battles both great and small against his enemies, wherein he for the most part had the victory. Donnogh the son of king Bryan Borowe, went with an army to the west of Ireland, and there killed Cahall m<sup>c</sup>Donell and took hostages of Donell. Teige sonn of king Bryan, and his brother Donnogh, feel at debate and were against one another in the field where Donnogh had the worst, and Rory m<sup>c</sup>Donnagann, prince of Arie,<sup>1</sup> was slaine. Dowlenn m<sup>c</sup>Twahall king of Leinster died. Carbry m<sup>c</sup>Cahall, and Newman O'Seanchin, 2 anchorites, Died. O'Moyledorie prince of Tire Connell, and O'Royrck killed Donnell m<sup>c</sup>Cahall and destroyed all Connaught and tooke their hostages.

1008.—Donell m<sup>c</sup>Duff Davereann brought an armye to Lymbrick where he was mett and strongly resisted by Teig and Donnogh, the 2 sons of Bryan Borowa with the forces of Thomond, where there was a cruell and bloody battle fought between them, in the end whereof Donell had the worst and lost the field and his life too. o'Neill went with a great armye of Meathmen to Leinster, and spoyled wasted and destroyed all that province all along to Gleandalogha, and killed some of their gentry. King Moyleseachlin, o'Neale, and o'Moyledorie with their forces went to Dublin, and burnt all the houses therein from the forte out, and from thence they went to o'Keanseally in Leinster which they preyed, harried, and spoyled, and took Divers captives with them, among whom Congallagh m<sup>c</sup>Connor king of Affailie was taken, and Gilla Colme o'Hugh prince of Teaffa. The king accompanied with o'Neale and o'Moyledorie, went all over Leinster, tooke their hostages and constituted Donowan m<sup>c</sup>Dowlen king of that province. Gillechrest m<sup>c</sup>Neale o'Dowley was killed by the king prince of Feartullagh. The son of Randalphe m<sup>c</sup>Hymer of Waterford was slaine by the o'Liahans of Munster.

man, died. There was a great shower of haile in Summer this yeare the stones whereof were as bigg as crabbes, there was alsoe such thunder and Lightning that it killed an infinite number of cattle everywhere in the kingdome. King Moyleseachlin m<sup>c</sup>Donnell m<sup>c</sup>Donogh king of all Ireland, haveing thus triumphantly raigned over all Ireland, and his enemies the Danes, died in Croinnis<sup>1</sup> upon Logh Innill neere his house of Doone Sgiath in the 43 yeare of his reigne in the forth of the noones of September, the sunday next before the feast day of St. Queran in the yeare of our Lord 1022. The archbushopp of Ardmach, the cowarb of St. Columbkille and the cowarb of St Queran being present, after hee received the sacrament of extreme Unction, died a good death. This was the last king of Ireland of Irish blood that had crowen. Yett there was seven kings after without a crown before the comeing of the English, as shall be made manifest in the ensueing Discourse.

Now that you may know the kings of the severall races, and how many of them raigned since the comeing of St Patrick the Apostle into this land, which were in number 48 kings Dureing the space of 615 yeares, it shall appeare unto you by this table following :

Saint Patrick came into this land the 4 yeare of the reign of King Lagery, in the yeare of the Incarnation 425 as before is specified. Dureing the raigne of the said 48 kings there Raigned none but the Clanna Neales, except Ailleall Molt of Connaught and Brian Borowa for 12 yeares onely, as may appear by a cathologue of their names. Of the race of king Lagery there raigned but 2 kings viz<sup>t</sup>. Lagery himself and his son Lauthus or Leway m<sup>c</sup>Lagery.

Dermott m<sup>c</sup>Morrogh king of Leinster accompanied with all the forces of the Danes came to Westmeath to be revenged of the o'Melaghlins for their abuses don to him before, hee was mett by the o'Roircks, o'Kellyes, and those of Uriell of the other side, where they caused m<sup>c</sup>Murrogh with his Danes and Leinstermen to return without committing any hurtes worthy to be remembred, but only the burning of Ardbrackan. Whereupon they of the East of Meath, went to the o'Foylans<sup>3</sup> and borders of Leinster, burnt and spoyled their townes without respect to either spirituall or corporall lands. Soone after Dermott m<sup>c</sup>Murrogh king of the Danes and Leinster, came to the house of Morrogh o'Melaghlin in Clonard, where he made an offer to the said Morrogh of his own service in the field against any one with his forces with as great an army for king Murroghs assistance against any other during the kings pleasure, as long as his occasions required at his owen charges, soe that Morrogh would be pleased to suffer him quitely to enjoye only the Territorys of the o'ffoylans and Affailies without disturbance, which the said Murrogh accepted. 1137.—There was Boysterous tempestous windes this yeare that it fell downen many trees, houses, turrets, steeples, and other things, & whirled som of them into the seas. Donnell m'Murrough o'Melaughlin, prince of all Ireland and king of Meath for a time, a very bountifull and noble prince, as free harted as Gwairy of Connaught, was killed by the east of Meath, for being in Rebellion against his father and Meath men. Waterford was beseiged by Dermot m'Murrough, king of Leinster, and Connor o'Bryan prince of Dalgaissie, where the Danes had a fleet of 200 shipes at sea, at last they obtayned hostages of the Danes and Donnogh m'Carhie, which they brought with them. All Connaught from Esroe to the river of Synen, and from Clonvickenos to Eghtgie<sup>2</sup> was wast this year, save Iarhar Connought. More, daughter of King Mortaugh o'Bryan, and wife to Morrough o'Melaughlin and Queen of Meath, died a very good death at Dorow. Moyle Issa called Crossan ffyn a King and arch-poet of Ireland, in that kind of meeter which is called Crossanaght, died at Cloneonrie in Leinster.

1139.—They of the country of Elye, tooke a prey of Fearkeall, after they were sworn friendes to each other by great oathes for the preservation of the peace between them. King Terlaugh tooke his owen son prisoner after that he gave him before upon these oaths and securities following, vidz<sup>t</sup> (his owen name was Rory o'Connor that was afterwards king of Ireland) Moriegh o'Duffie arch bishopp with all the laymen and clergie of Connought, Teige o'Bryan, king of Thomond, Tyernann o'Royrck king of the Brienie, & Murrough m'Gillenenewe o'Fergall, cheeftaine of the Analie. In the meane time king Terlaugh ceased upon the kingdom of Meath into his owen hands and graunted the same to his son Connor o' Connor, which was made by this devise. The king caused to be assembled to Keylike the nobility of Meath and to Bryan of the Brenie, where he apprehended king Murrogh of Meath and took hostages of the rest of Meath which he delivered to his said son, with the possession of the Kingdome of Meath as aforesaid. o'Garmley<sup>4</sup> tooke the Principallity of Tyre Owen to him, was king thereof & Banished there hence the sonn of Neale.

1140.—There raigned strange diseases of biles and patches this yeare in Munster, whereof many died, and among the rest these two noble young men, Bryan m<sup>c</sup>Terlaugh o'Bryan, prince of Munster, and Teige m<sup>c</sup>Terlaugh o'Connor ought not to b<sup>e</sup> forgotten. Connor m<sup>c</sup>Terlaugh o'Connor, prince of Ireland and king of Meath for the space of half a yeare, was killed by o'Dowlyn, king of ffertullagh, because he was unjustly constituted to raigne over Meath, which o'Dowleyn could never well brooke. King Terlaugh granted the government of Westmeath to Donnogh m<sup>c</sup>Morrogh o'Melaghlin, and the government of Eastmeath to Tiernan o'Royrcke and Dermott m<sup>c</sup>Murrogh to be held of the king of Connaught by services of homage and fealty dureing pleasure. Rory o'Connor was enlarged by his father king Terlaugh upon further securityes. There was an agreement of truce made between king Terlaugh and Terlaugh o'Bryan at Tyredaglasse, as the prelates of the church ordained between them. Terlaugh o'Connor king of Ireland came to Meath to constitute a king over them, where he appoynted Donnogh o'Melaughlin king of the weast of Logh Innill and the son of Mortagh o'Melaughlin of the east part of the said Logh. Meathmen gave an erick<sup>2</sup> of four hundred coves to king Terlagh for killing his son.

1141.—There was a great disease of Biles, potches, and scabbes in Connaught and Munster this year. King Terlaugh o'Bryan king of Munster with all his forces came to Leitter Crannagh<sup>3</sup> on the mount of Slieve Bloome to meet with Tyernan o'Roirck in Meath. King Terlagh o'Connor encamped with his forces in Rawaghan<sup>4</sup> in Foxes contry, and sent his son Donell, together with Melaghlin m<sup>c</sup>Murrogh o'Melaghlin, Connor m<sup>c</sup>Donnell o'Bryan, and Dermott

m<sup>c</sup>Cormack m<sup>c</sup>Carhie with great and many forces went to Fearkeall to defend Meath, that the said Munstermen should not passe through that contry to anoy Meath, and were mett by the Munstermen in a wood in the west part of that contry, where they killed divers of them, and compelled them to returne to their howses without doeing anything worthy to be remembered. King Terlaugh o'Connor with his forces of Connaught tooke hostages of all Munster, except west Munster, which he left to Terlagh o'Bryan. Munster in old time was divided in five Munsters, vidz<sup>t</sup> Ormond, Thuomond, Desmond, Middle Munster, and West Munster. King Terlagh o'Connor this yeare gave the battle of Moynemore<sup>1</sup> on the Munstermen, he was accompanied with Dermott m<sup>c</sup>Murrogh and the forces of Ireland, where Murtagh m<sup>c</sup>Connor o'Bryan, and an infinite number of the nobility of Munster were slaine, and all Munster brought in subjection to king Terlagh. The hostages of Leinster were sent to Mortagh m<sup>c</sup>Neale m<sup>c</sup>Loghlyn eaven to his house. John Papirion<sup>2</sup> Cardinall came to this kingdom from the Pope to procure the inhabitants of the land to an amendment of theire lives.

1152.—All Munster was much impoverished by continuall contentions of the maCarthies and o'Bryans contending against one another. King Terlagh o'Connor for appeasing of which contentions went to Munster, and divided that province in two parts between Cormack m<sup>c</sup>Carhie, and the o'Bryans, Teige and Terlagh. King Terlaugh accompanied with Murtagh m<sup>c</sup>Neale m<sup>c</sup>Laughlin came to Meath, which he likewise divided into tooe parts between Murrogh o'Melaghlin, and his son Melaghlin, that is to say, of the West of Clonard to Morrogh, and of the East as farr as Meath extends to his said sonn. Henry m<sup>e</sup>David, king of Scotland, dyed.

1153.—Murrogh o'Melaghlin king of Meath, bordres of Leinster and Taragh, the cheefest of all Ireland for bounty and hospitallity, died at Dorow in his owen house. Hugh o'Malone, cowarb of St. Queran of Clonvickenos, whoe for his great ritches, charity, and bountyfull hospitallity was called in generall the fountaine of all happiness of Leath Coyne, died. Gillegott o'Kierga,<sup>1</sup> prince of Carbry,<sup>2</sup> was killed at Clonard by Donnogh o'Melaghlin, king of Meath. Donnogh o'Melaghlin was deposed by the Meathmen of his kingdome, and Dermott m<sup>e</sup>Donnell o'Melaghlin put in his stead, who was his owen brother. There was a great Discomfiture of these of Brawnie and Mointer Moyleynna<sup>3</sup> by Hymer m<sup>e</sup>Carhon and the son of o'Conway and these of Mointer Hagan alias Foxes contry. St. Queran was Intercesser to God to give this ouerthrow to these of Brawnie, because they went with their cottes and boates to Clonvicknos and tooke all the swyne and hoggs that the monkes had upon the woodes of Faailt, which the monkes with the shrine of St. Queran followed to the place called Lisan Tosgely,<sup>4</sup> desireing restitution, which was denied them, and by Gods will Brawnye receaved this Disgrace and ouerthrow the next day. King Terlagh m<sup>e</sup>Rory o'Connor, monarch of Ireland, a great benefactor of the church and all spirituall men in generall, a man of wonderfull hospitality, and in fine a reliever and cherisher of the poor, died in Donmore, the 13th of the Kalends of June in the 50th year of his reign and the 68th year of his age, after whose death his sonn prince Rory was invested in the government of Connaught as king of that province, untill Mortagh m<sup>c</sup>Neale m<sup>c</sup>Laughlyn ended his raigne, then Rory was promoted to the monarchie of Ireland. Mortagh m<sup>c</sup>Neale was king of Ireland 14 years, he was of the o'Neales of the North. Terlagh o'Bryan, king of Munster, came unto the house of Rory o'Connor, and gave him 12 hostages of the cheefest of Dalgaissie. King Mortagh with this forces went to Leinster, and gave the kingdome and Government thereof or of that province to Dermott m<sup>c</sup>Murrough for yeelding him hostages of obedience & allegiance. They wasted and spoyled all Ossery without respect of Church or Chaple. Cowley o'Kendalan, prince of the race of Lagery, a nobleman both ready and hasty to put in practice all goodness, as liberall as Gwairie of Connaught, as well spoken as Mongan m<sup>c</sup>ffiaghna,<sup>1</sup> was unhappily and treacherously killed by Donnogh m<sup>c</sup>Donnell o'Melaghlin king of Meath, haveing sworne to each other before by these ensueing oathes to be true to one another without effusion of blood, for performance of which oathes the primate of Ardmach was bound to the Popes Legatt, Greman<sup>2</sup> arch Bushopp of Dublyn, the abbott of the monkes of Ireland, the cowarb of St. Queran with his oathes, the staff or bachall of Jesus, the cowarb of St Fechin with his oathes, the cowarb of Saint Columbkil, with his oathes. These oathes were taken before king Mortagh, Donnogh o'Kervell king of Uriell, Tier-nan o'Royrck king of the Brenie, and Dermott m<sup>c</sup>Morrogh king of Leinster, and the principallest of Meath and Teaffa alsoe, and if there were no such oathes or suretyes, it was a wicked act to kill such a nobleharted man without cause. There was a great convocation of the clergie consisting of 17 Bishoppes with the primate of Ireland and Legatte in Tredath this year aboute the consecration of the church<sup>3</sup> of monkes that

Cowoley m<sup>c</sup>Dunleyue o'Keoghie, king of Ulster died. m<sup>c</sup>Dowell steward of Donmore was killed. King Mortagh with his forces went to Leinster, where Dermott m<sup>c</sup>Murrough king of Leinster gaue him hostages. They of Affalie, Lease, and Ossery fled into Connaught, the king afterwards with the forces of Leinster went to Desmond, where they had the hostages of that contry, from thence went to those of Dalgaisse whom he banished to Thomond & also did putt som of them to the sword, he also besieged Limbrick, and compelled the Danes to submitt themselves to his grace, and to acknowledge him as their king, & to forsake Terlaugh o'Bryan & also to banish him from out of their jurisdiction, & there divided Munster in two parts between the son of MaCarhie and the son of Donnell o'Bryan, from thence the King came to the plaine of Moyfarcha,<sup>1</sup> tooke the preyes and spoyles of Sileanmchie, killed part of the inhabitants, & gave them an overthrow. They of the Eoganaght of Cashell destroyed and preyed Rosscree and from thence the king came to his house. While these things were a Doing Rory o'Connor king of Connaught went with a great army to Ulster in the absence of King Murtoagh, there burnt Iniseany,<sup>2</sup> hewed and did cut downe all the trees in the orchard, and tooke away the preyes and spoyles of Tyreowen to Kwaillie Kyannaghty.<sup>3</sup> Rorie o'Connor with his forces went to Munster, and settled Murtagh o'Bryan in possession as halfe king, or king of halfe Munster, and caused the sonn of Cormack m<sup>c</sup>Carthy to yeeld hostages into his handes with 1158.—Rory o'Connor king of Connaught with his forces went to Leythlyn, where he tooke the hostages of Ossery and Lease, and tooke captive with him m<sup>c</sup>Rath o'More, prince of Lease. Hugh o'Demsey prince of Clanmaliere<sup>3</sup> died. Carbrey o'Kyergie accompanied with Teaffa men, made a retrait upon Dermott o'Melaghlin, deposed him, and putt again Donnogh o'Melaghlin in his former place. Tyernan of Royrick and Dermott followed them to Athmoyné (now called Lismoyné<sup>4</sup>) where they gave them an overthrow, and took great preyes from Sileronan and Moyntyry Kyergie, Carbrey was banished to Leinster, and afterwards came to an atonement,<sup>5</sup> and Donnogh was banished into Connaught. Connor m<sup>c</sup>Donnell o'Bryan was taken by Terlaugh o'Bryan, and his little son with him, they both had their eyes put out, notwithstanding there was an agreement made before by them of conditionall peace with sureties and oathes taken before great prelates of the church. There was a conuocation of all the clergie in Ireland at Breyuick Teige.<sup>6</sup> The bishoppes of Connaught with the archbishopp, Hugh o'Nosyn,<sup>7</sup> tooke their jorney to come thither, & as they were passing towards Clonvicknose with

There was a great mount of fier seen in the firmament this yeare, westerly of Tea Doynn in Mounster, it was bigger then St. Patricks mount, which dispersed in severall showers of small sparkles of fier without doeing any hurt, this was upon the Eave<sup>2</sup> of St. John in Autumne.

1159.—King Mortagh came to Rowe Connell<sup>3</sup> in Meath, & banished Dermott o'Melaghlin from out of all Meath, and deposed him of his principality, and confirmed Donnogh his brother in the possession thereof. Abbell, anchorite of Ardmach, died. Rory o'Connor and Tyernan tooke their several oathes, to be true to one another in all respects, whereupon they retrayted against Mortagh, king of Ireland and rebelled against him. Rory o'Connor made a wooden<sup>4</sup> bridge at Athlone, that he might have passage to take the spoyles of Meath. The forces of Meath and Teaffa came to Athlone to hinder the makeing of the said bridge with theire king Donnogh o'Melaghlin, and fought with Rory o'Connor, where in the end Hugh o'Connor, Rory o'Connor's son, was sore hurt of an irrecoverable wound, whereof hee died within a weeke after.

1162.—Melaghlin m'Morrogh o'Melaghlin, king of Meath and of the most part of Leinster in his prime and flourishing estate on the night<sup>3</sup> of St. Bridgett the virgin, died in the house of Dorow. King Mortagh with his forces came to the river of Inneoyne,<sup>4</sup> at the foorde of Dongolman<sup>5</sup> and there tooke the hostages of all the contry of Teaffa, and established Donnogh o'Mellaghlin in the government of Meath as king thereof. Tyernan o'Royrck took prisoner Donnogh o'Keruell king of Uriell and fettered him with irons on his heeles. Soone after Godfrey or Geffery o'Relly tooke him away by force from the said Tyernan. The bridge of Athlone was broken and the fort raysed to the earth by Donnogh o'Melaghlin king of Meath. Donnogh m'Donnell o'Melaghlin, king of Meath, was killed by Murrogh o'Finnollan king of Delvin More, and by his sonns, for the great and extortious dealings of the said Donnogh continually used against them.

1164.—Donnogh m<sup>c</sup>Gillepatrick m<sup>c</sup>Donnogh king of Ossery, died. Kill o'Milchon<sup>2</sup> and Rossemide,<sup>3</sup> were freed by Dermott o'Melaghlin, king of Meath from all manner of cess and press for ever in honour of God and Saint Queran. Mortagh was slain by those of Uriell, after whose death Rory o'Connor king of Connaught succeeded in the monarchie. Rory more m<sup>c</sup>Terlagh o'Connor in the English Chronicles is called Rotherick, was the last king of Ireland of Irish blood, and raigned 10 years. Our Irish Chronicles for the most part call those seven and last kings imperfect and defective kings, because they raigned without a crown<sup>4</sup> (as before is mentioned) since the raigne of Bryan Borowe, and Moyleseachlin more o'Melaghlin. In king Rory o'Connors time Dermot m<sup>c</sup>Murrogh a<sup>t</sup>s Keyuanagh was banished from out of the province of Leinster by king Rory, Tyernan o'Royrck, and their partakers in the year of our Lord 1166 for the unjustly taking and keeping of Deruorgill daughter of Murrogh o'Melaghlyn king of Meath, and wife of the said Tyernan o'Royrck, being before for his pride, tyranny, and badd government hated<sup>5</sup> of the Leinstermen themselves, and at last being thereunto compelled by necessity went for England and brought with him from thence Robert king of Stephen's sonne, called Robert Fitzstephen,<sup>6</sup> twenty knights of Englishmen, and 50 archers of Welshmen, with a great armye,

In the year 1170 last mentioned, there was a great Convocation of the clergie of Ireland at Clonfert by commisson from the Pope, for the reformation of certaine abuses of a long time used in Ireland. These were the Bishops and clergy that were in that assemblye, vidz<sup>t</sup>
 Ireland and Bishop of Meath, Echtytygerne m<sup>c</sup>Moylekieran Bishop o'Kervell bushopp of Uriell, Cadla o'Duffie arch-of St. Queran, and the cowarb of Saint Brandon &c, where it was laid down by them by a Constitution that noe layman should have the rule of any Church or Church matters from thence forth, that noe portion Canons should be sought of women theire husbands liveing, that Holy Orders should not be given to bushopp nor Priests sonnns, and for example of these their Constitutions, they tooke the livings of seven bushopps that had Bushopricks and were laymen.<sup>1</sup> There was money<sup>2</sup> coyned in Clonvickenos this year. Lorcan o'Twahall archbushopp of Dublin and legat of Ireland died in England.<sup>3</sup>

1180.—The church of the Nunns of Clonvicknos was finished by the lady Dervorgill daughter of Morrogh o'Melaghlen before mentioned this year. Dervaille daughter of o'Melaghlen and wife of Randalphe m<sup>c</sup>Coghlan, m<sup>c</sup>Coghlands sonne, died this year.

1181.—Sir John Coursey returned again to Downe Daleahglasse, and repaired to his house there. Clonard was well renewed by his own natives being altogether spoyled, razed, and defaced by the Danes and other foreigners before. Dowchauley daughter of o'Roirck queen of Ireland, and wife to Rory o'Connor king of Ireland, died in pennance. Miles Cogan, Raymond de la Grosse, Keannkoylean, and the two sons of Fitz Stephen, were killed by m<sup>c</sup>Tyre prince of Imokuylle.<sup>4</sup> There was a great slaughter of Englishmen by the Welshmen this yeare, there were 28 of their chiefest slaine. It is not knowen how many of the inferiour sort because the slaughter was soe great that they could not be numbred. The most part of the Englishmen that were in the north were slaine by Ulstermen this yeare. The steeple of Ardbracan fell this yeare. Donnogh o'Kervell prince of Uriell (who killed king Mortaugh m<sup>c</sup>Neale) died.

1182.—William the Conqueror king of England died in Normandy in the yeare of our Lord 1082. William Rufus son of king William the Conqueror succeeded next after his father and raigned 13 years, a great persecutor of the church and at last was by mischance slaine by S<sup>r</sup> Walter Tyrrell knight with an arrow at new forrest. Also Henery the first after hee raigned 35 years died in anno 1137, he was surnamed Henry Beauclearck. King Steephen reigned 19 yeares and died in Anno 1155. Henry the second after he raigned king of England 33 years died in Anno 1190, he began his conquest of Ireland about the fourteenth yeare of his raigne of England.

There are soe many leaves lost or stolen out of the ould Irish book which I Translate, that I doe not know how to handle it, but to satisfie your request, I will translate such places in the book as I can read, and yett in the mean while I shall entreat you to hold me excused for not nameing the kings deputies and Englishmen therein contained by their right names, for I goe by the words of the ould booke and not by my owen invention, which is soe illfavouredly and confusedly handled, that mine author could not gett his pen to name the Kings of England or other foraigne contryes by their proper names but by such Irish names as he pleased to devise out of his owen head, although he was a great Latinist and Scholler, which I thought fitt to declare for mine owen excuse soe I rest

the knight, Grandchild of Donnogh o'Melaghlen, young prince of Meath, and Hugulat m<sup>c</sup>Convey o'Leygachan. Cahall Carragh o'Connor with the forces of William Burk, Mortagh o'Bryen, and Connor Roe o'Bryan, deposed Cahall Crovdearg o'Connor and banished him to the North of Connaught & tooke hostages of all Connaught, they preyed and tooke the spoyles of the Hospittalls of Clonvicknos, Bushoppe and all the churches of Connaught of that voyage. Richard the first King of England died this year.

1200.—Meiler,<sup>1</sup> and the Englishmen of Leinster came to Clonvicknose to meet with Cahall Carragh o'Connor, where they remained together 2 nights and at last tooke the spoyles of the town and churches. Rory m<sup>c</sup>Donnsleyve o'Heoghaa king of Ulster, was killed by John De Coursey and his Englishmen. Cadley o'Duffie arch-bushopp of all Connaught died. Cahall Crovdearg o'Connor, o'Neale, and these of Fermanagh, preyed Arteagh<sup>2</sup> and Varde eallae,<sup>3</sup> and at last Cahall departed from his assotiate ill content. Cahall Carragh and William Power overtook o'Neale and these of Farmannagh and gave them an overthrow where o'Heignye King of Farmannagh with many others were slaine. Cahall Crovdearg o'Connor accompanied with the forces of John De Coursey and Hugh Delacie, passed through Connaught untill they came to Tyrefiaghragh Ainye,<sup>4</sup> where they were mett by Cahall Carragh o'Connor, with all his Irish and English forces, and were overthrown and pursued to Royndowne<sup>5</sup> (now called Teagh Eoin or Johns town neer Loghrie) John De Coursey was forsed to take boate when he came to that place, and his people knew not where to betake themselves for their safety, but only by saileing into the Islands of Loghrie, where an infinite number of them were slaine and drowned. Soone after Cahall Croidearg was taken deceitfully by the Englishmen of Meath, and by Hugh Delacy the younger and was conveyed to the Castle of the Obber,<sup>1</sup> there to be safely kept, untill he had given them their pay, which he was content to give in part, and for the rest to give security, by which means he was sett at liberty, and immediately went to Mounster to MaCarthy and Wm Burke. And for John Coursey after slaying of his people, (as before you heard) returned to Ulster again. Some of Meyler Bermingham's people tooke the spoyle of the castle of Ardmurcher,<sup>2</sup> and burnt all the houses of the market.

1201.—Cahall Croidearg and William Burke with all their forces of English and Irishmen came to Connaught, passed from Limerick to Twayme,<sup>3</sup> from thence to Owran,<sup>4</sup> from thence to Oylfyn, from thence to the Carrick of Loghke,<sup>5</sup> from thence to the abbey of Athdalaragh,<sup>6</sup> where the chambers and roomes of that abbey were the lodgings of the armye. Cahall m<sup>c</sup>Connor o'Dermott went to prey the lands of m<sup>c</sup>Dermott and was slaine by Teige m<sup>c</sup>Connor Moenmoy there alsoe Cahall Carragh o'Connor king of Conaught came in view of the said forces, to a place called Gurtin Cowle Lwachra,<sup>7</sup> and from thence he came to the skirmish between his forces and them, who finding his people discomfitted and put to flight, was killed himself by the miracles of St. Queran together with Koylle m<sup>c</sup>Dermott o'Moylerwayne and many others. Cahall Croidearg and William Burk after committing these great slaughters went with their forces to Moynoy<sup>1</sup> and Moylorge, over Donleoy into Moynemoy, from thence to West Connaught, untill they came to Cownge<sup>2</sup> of St. Fehine, where they then kept their Easter. At which time William Burk and the sons of Rory o'Flathvertye privily consulted and conspired together to kill Cahall Crovedearge o'Connor, which God prevented, for they were by great oaths sworne to each other befor which whosoever would break was to be excommunicated with booke, bell and candle. William Burke sent his souldiers to distrain for their payes and wages throughout Connaught, who were soone cut off, for 6 or 700 of them were soone after slain. William Burk afterwards repayred to Lymbrick, and Cahall Crovdearg tooke upon him the name of King of Connaught again. Teige o'Broyne prince of Lwynie in Meath died. Moriegh m<sup>c</sup>Neale ffox o'Kaharnye died. William Burk and the sons of Connor tooke a great prey from the clergie and monkes of St Brandon,<sup>3</sup> and tooke great spoyles also from the abbott of Malone,<sup>4</sup> and the bushop of Morican<sup>5</sup> till they came to the place called Snámé na en,<sup>6</sup> which is as much to say in English as the Swiming of the two birds.

1202.—William Burke and the sons of Connor Meenmay with great and maine forces, about the first of February, came to Connaught, tooke the spoiles of Clonfert, church, town, and all, from thence went to Milick,<sup>7</sup> tooke the spoyles thereof alsoe, and founded a castle adjoining to the church, from thence William Burke came to the abbey of Cnockmoy<sup>8</sup> which he preyed and spoyled of all things whatsoever both great and small, and from thence held on marching through Connaught preying and spoiling all places both temporall and spirituall without respect, untill he came to Mayoe of the English where they killed the two sonns of Hugh Dall o'Connor, came also from thence to Cownga of St. ffehin, where he did likewise spoyle the towne and church and stayed for a long space. The Englishmen of Milick and Sile Anmchye accompanied with the 2 families of Moyntyrr Kenay, and Moyntyrr Milchon came to Clonvicknose upon the feast day of Saint Gregory, preyed and spoyled the church, Sanctuary, and towne of Clonvicknose; the next friday the said company came to Clonvicknose and tooke the like spoyles from thence, and though the first spoyles were much, yett the second were farr greater. Some of Delvin were at the taking of the said spoyles, they took from out of the church the holy vestments, books, chalices, cloth, Linnen, and corn, and all other things they could finger soe that they left the croftes, gardens, and houses of the town wast and voyde, like an empty chaos without any manner of thing but their empty and foot-troden grounds. After doing of which William Burke returned again to Milick, and from thence he marched to Limerick and left a good company to guard the castle of Meelick. The ward seeing William gon they fled by night out of the castle and followed William into the south. Meyler Bremyngham accompanied with the forces of Cahall Crovdearg o'Connor king of Connaught, consisting of a great army of English and Irishmen, marched on till they came to Lymberick, and banished William Burk from out the same and refused to give him one castle<sup>1</sup> there, and caused him to go to England, to the king, and afterwards Meyler, the king of Connaght, and o'Bryan parted with one another, in peaceable and friendly manner, with good attonement and agreement between them, and immediately the king of Connaught broke down the castle of Meelick. There was great scarcity of victualls throughout the whole kingdom of Ireland

this year, that infinite numbers of the meaner sort perished for want, and there was plenty of milk.

1203.—Hugh Delacye brought a great army with him to Ulster into the town of Downe daleithglasse, where he was mett by S<sup>r</sup> John Coursey & his forces, where in a long encounter of battle Coursey was overthrown, his people slain, and himself banished into England.

1204.—William Burk tooke the spoyles of all the churches of Connaught, vidzt. Clonvicknose, Clonfert, Milick, Killbryan,<sup>1</sup> the churches of o'ffiachragh, Twayne, Killeneoene,<sup>2</sup> Killeneoyne,<sup>3</sup> Mayo of the English, Cownga of St ffehin, the abby of Ath-da-laragh, Ailfin, Uaran, Roscommon, with many other churches. God and the patrons of these churches shewed theire miracles upon him that his entrayles and fondament fell from his privie place and it trayled after him even to the very earth, whereof he died, impenitently without shrive or extrem unction or good Buriall in any church in the Kingdom but in a wast town. These and many other reproachful wordes my author layeth down in the ould books, which I was loth to translate because they were uttered by him for the disgrace of soe worthy and noble a man as William Burk was, and left out other his reproachful words which he (as I conceive) rather declared of an evil will he did beare towards the said William than any other just cause. John De Coursey and the Englishmen of Meath fell to great contentions, strifes, and debates among themselves, which at last fell to a deadly warr, to the ruine and destruction of Ulster. John was gon to the contrye of tireowen or tireone. Hugh De Lacy went to England.

1205.—M<sup>c</sup>Goill of Bealykervell prince of Elie was killed by the English. Hugh Delacie the younger took the spoyles of Ardmach, which was soone after revenged upon him by the Saints of Ireland. Gillebrenyn o'Bichollye cowarb of Leithmancan died. Moylekieran o'Kelly of Rahine cowarb of

St Suanus in Rahine, died. 47 houses both great and small were burnt about the place called Liseanabby in Clonvicknose. There was an alter of stone made by Melaghlen o'Melaghlen and these of Clonvicknose with the degree thereof in the great church of Clonvicknose aforesaid. Meiler the younger son of Meyler Bermingham besieged Limebrick, and at last tooke the same per force, for which cause there arose great dissention between the English of Meath. In which dissention Cowley mConvey o'Leygaghan was killed by these of Kinnaleagh, he was chief of Sile Ronan<sup>1</sup> with many other hurts done amongst the Englishmen themselves.

1206.—Cahall o'Malone arch Bushop with the o'Neales and Connaught men, died the 8th of February, I mean the 8th of the Ides of February, he for his great riches, hapiness, learning, and many other good partes was held in great reverence, ended his life with a very happy and commendable end at Clonvicknose. Eaght daughter of Rowrie o'Connor king of Connought died. The sonnes of Art o'Melaghlen preyed the town of Baleloghloe,<sup>2</sup> and burnt part thereof, were overtaken by Melaghlen begg o'Melaghlen. Gille Crowherfrey m'Carrhon and certaine English forces, were in pursuite that route of Meathmen were discomfitted and putt to flight, killed Mortagh or Morrogh son of Melaghlen begg, Mortaugh m'Donnogh Koyle, and alsoe Morrogh m'Morrogh o'Kelly was taken. Robert Delacie son of Hugh Delacie, died.

1207.—There arose great warrs in Leinster between the Englishmen there, vidz<sup>t</sup> between Meyler and Geoffrey March,<sup>3</sup> and also William Marschall,<sup>4</sup> which soon brought all Leinster and Mounster to utter destruction. There arose alsoe the like contention and strife between Meyler and Hugh Delacie that between the said parties the land of Foherties was wasted, preyed and destroyed. The sons of Hugh Delacie with the forces of the English of Meath lay seige to the castle of Ardnurcher, and the same continued for the space of five weeks, untill they forsed Meyler to abandon and forsake all the cantred of Kinaleagh from Burr to Killare.<sup>1</sup> An English bushop was sent over into this land by the king of England to govern the land as Deputy thereof, he was Bushop of Norway,<sup>2</sup> and was excommunicated by the Pope together with all Englishmen in England (which excommunication hung over them for the space of two or three yeares, in so much that their churches did not use the sacraments dureing the said time. The English of Meath and Leinster with their forces went to Killaloe to build a castle there, near the Borowe,<sup>3</sup> and were frustrated of their purpose, did neither castle nor other thing worthy of memory, but lost some men and horses in there jorney, and soe returned to their houses back again. Moriertagh m<sup>e</sup>Bryen an Tleyve besiedged the castle of Byrre and at last burnt the whole town. The castle of Athronny<sup>4</sup> in Lease was spoyled altogether by the said Mortagh and the sonnes of o'Connor of Connaught, slew many of the inhabitants, and after taking away all the cowes, sheep, harnesses, and other things therein, they burnt the towne. David Breathnagh<sup>5</sup> bushopp of Waterford was killed by o'Foylan of the Desies. The castle of Kenedy, the castle of Burre, and the castle of Lothra, were broken downe and quite destroyed by the said Mortagh o'Bryen. 1211.—Ranelt daughter of Rowry o'Connor died. The English Bushop came over into this land again and was deputie thereof and went with all the forces of Ireland to Cloneis<sup>1</sup> in the North where he built a castle, the English Bushopp sent certain of the army to Magmahons land to take the preyes of the contry, were overtaken and mett by Magmahon, who slew divers of them about Meyler. Meyler Robert, and Meyler himself and divers of the Englishmen of Leinster, tooke and caused them to leave the prey and horses and gave them many fierce onsets as well by night as by day from thence forward. The Deputie came from thence to Leinster and sent for the forces of Munster, whoe came accordingly with Donnogh Carbreagh o'Bryan, and marched with all their forces to Killnegrann, in ffercall, now called Killmore, where they were met by Cormack m<sup>c</sup>Art o'Melaghlen who discomfitted them, where they left all their cowes, horses, gold, silver, and other things to the said Cormack. Cahall Croidearg o'Connor went to the Deputies house to Dublin to keep Christmasse with him and returned afterwards to his owen house. Cormack m<sup>c</sup>Art o'Melaghlen expelled the Englishmen out of Delvin and gave a great overthrow to a company of Englishmen that were left to defend that contry, in which discomfiture, Robertt Dongomer, their constable and chiefe head was slain together with Gillernew m<sup>c</sup>Coghlan the prince of Delvins son.

1212.—Gillebert m<sup>c</sup>Cosdealvie was killed by o'Heignie by the procurement and setting on of o'Neale. William Pettit<sup>2</sup> died. o'Neall with the forces of the North assaulted the castle of Cloneis afterwards, and took the same and killed all the warde that were therein. Down Magwyer, prince of Fermanagh, the best of all Ireland for hospitallity, liberallity and prowes, died. Great comparisons have been made between this Down Magwyer and Donell Roe m<sup>c</sup>Carthye before mentioned for their bountyes and hospitallityes, which Down Magwyer by the judgment of a certaine learned poet (which remained for a long time in the houses of the said Down and Donell, Covertly and in the habitt of a Carrough<sup>3</sup> or common gamster to know which of them surpassed the other), was accountped to surpas or excell Donell in all good parts, as by this Irish verse made by the said Poet you may know.

1310.—Tany More o'Mullronye, chief chronicler of Sile Morye, Died in the spring of this yeare. Hugh Beifneagh made a great prey called the prey of Toytyn or fire upon Moylronie m'Dermott in Clogher, where Donogh m'Donogh m'Dermott was taken captive and his wife (o'fflanagans daughter) was killed; women, children & many others were also there killed, and encamped at Oghterhyrie, before m'Dermott and the Inhabitants of Sile Morey, which when William Burk heard he encamped at Killomatt<sup>2</sup> in the sight of the said Hugh Breifneagh. While they were thus encamped before each other Hugh Breifnagh sent privie message to his Brother Rory m'Cahall that he should goe then in the absence of William Burk to his castle of Bonafinne, which he did accordingly prey, and spoyled the towne and castle of Bonafinne aforesaid & converted all they could find therein to their owne uses. Hugh Brefnagh staid there with his Bwannaghtmen and their Chiefe head Jonock<sup>3</sup> m'Vuellen,<sup>4</sup> & when this Johnock with hyred bwannaght men saw Hugh Breifnagh all alone, after the sending of the most part of all his forces with his Brother, to take the spoyles of Bonafinne aforesaid, being provoked thereunto by William Burk, who promised him a certaine stipend for killing the said Hugh Brefnagh, who accordingly getting the said opportunity killed the said Hugh Brefnagh according his promise to William Burk before made. When Tydeings came thereof to William Burke, Molronye m'Dermoda, and Sile Morye of their camp at Killomatt, they Immediately sent their forces to take the preyes and spoyles of the followers and

Butt by the way this much I gather out of this history, whome I take to be an authentick author and worthy prelate of the Church, that would tell nothing but truth, that there raigned more Disscentions, strifes, warres, and Debates betweene the Englishmen themselves in the beginning of the Conquest of this kingdome than between the Irishmen, as by perusing the warres betweene the Lasies of Meath, John Coursy earl of Ulster, William Marshall 1314.—Neale o'Donell Died. There was a battle fought by Robert Bruce king of Scotland aganst the Englishmen, where the said Robertt in defence of his Kingdome killed an infinite number of earls, knights and nobles of england, with a great slaughter of theire Inferiours at a place called Scrubleith<sup>1</sup> in Scotland, where the earle of Glocester (who then was next the king of England for nobility and greatness of Revenues) was killed. Neale m<sup>c</sup>Bryan o'Neale a Prince both famous for riches & good government, and that did beare greatest sway in Ireland, Died. Roalue m<sup>c</sup>Mahon was killed by his owen brother.

1315.—Edward m<sup>c</sup>Robert Bruce, earle of Carick and brother of king Robert, king of Scotland, Landed with a fleet of 300 ships in the north<sup>2</sup> of Ulster: at whose comeing all the Inhabitants of Ireland both English and Irish were stricken with great terrour, that it made the Lands and Inhabitants of Ireland to shake for feare. Immediately after his arrival hee burnt the Towns of Downdealgan, Athfirdia<sup>3</sup> and Rathmore,<sup>4</sup> Harryed and spoyled all Ulster in Generall, tooke theire hostages, collected the revenewes of that province to himself, and made the Ulstermen to consent and acknowledge him as theire king, and Delivered him the Regallities belonging to the king, and gave him the name of king of Ireland. When Richard Burk, earl of Ulster, heard that Edward Bruce was thus arrived, and that he usurped the name of king and exercised the fore-recited Tyranyes, he out of all partes gathered a great armye with him to Roscomon, from thence he marched on to Athlone, through the Borders of Meath and Moybrey accompanied with ffelym o'Connor king of Conaught. never spared neither spirituall nor Temporall land in every place where they came without respect of saint or shrine or sacred place, from the river of Synen of the south to Cowle-Ryan<sup>1</sup> of the north and Inisown. As this great army was thus marching on spoyleing and Destroying all places on their way, they saw Edward Butler, then Deputy of Ireland, likewise marching on towards them with 30 cohorts of well appoynted souldiers armed at all poynts, at whose sight the earle was somewhat angrie, alledging that himselfe was of sufficient power to expell Bruce and his Scottishmen out of the kingdome, and desired and advised the Deputy not to joyne with himselfe, and that he needed not his assistance. The earle that night encamped at Athfirdia neare the mount called Sliew Brey, and Edward Bruce with his Scottish and Ulstermen at Inis Kaeyne,<sup>2</sup> the earle the next daye followed him and encamped in the town of Louth. William Burk, to take some advantage of Bruce, skirmished with him where there were a few killed on either side. As for Edward Bruce and his armye by the procurement of o'Neal and Ulstermen he tooke his jorneye to Coulerayne of the ninth and to the borders of Inisowne, and fell down and broke the bridge of Cowlerayne to stop the earles passage over the river of Banne, whome the earle followed until he came to the said River and from thence through Ulster, where he marched, houlding on their course of spoyleing and Destroying all places where they came, not spareing church or chaple, in soe much that they did not leave neither field of corn undestroyed nor towne unransacked, nor unfrequented place (were it never so little nor soe desert) unsearched and unburnt, and consumed to meere ashes the very churches that lay in their way unto the bare stones, the encounter of which army on both sides of the river of Banne was soe inconvenient that neither partye could hinder or offend the other; for they were severed from each other by the deep, spatious, and smooth-running waters or river. Nevertheless they had daily shooting of arrows of both sides of the river. Edward Bruce hearing of the great fame of ffelym o'Conor king of Conaught that then was with the red earle, he sent him privie message that he would give him the province of Conaught at his Disposition, and to adheare to himselfe, and alsoe to return from the earle to Defend his owne province, to which offer the said ffelym listned and acknowledged to accept of him. In the mean tyme Rory m'Cahall Roe o'Connor seeing himself to have his opportunity in the absense of ffelym and his nobles, that went to him in the jorney of Ulster, he alsoe made his repaire to Edward Bruce with whome he had secret Communication, and Promissed the said Edward to Banish all Englishmen out of Conaught if Edward would be pleased to accept of his owne service. Edward authorised him to warr against Englishmen and not to meddle with the lands of ffelym, but having received that favour of Bruce, hee did not onely warre upon Englishmen, but alsoe upon ffelym and his partakers, and saught all meanes to get the kingdome of Conaught into his owen hands and immediately assembled together Breny-men & great Companies of Gallowglasses and Conaught men, and made towards the middle part of Sile-morey, where first of all he burnt the street towne of Sligeagh, Athkleen Coran, the castle of Killcolman, the towne of Tobber Bride<sup>1</sup>; Downoman with the Castle, Roscomon, Ryndowne als Teadoyn ard Athlone together with all the houses that lay in his way between these places. After committing of which great exployts, he desired m'Dermoda to give him the duties due upon him, belonging to the king of Connaught and alsoe to yield him obedience which m'Dermoda absolutely denied, and with all refused to give him hostages, but he received hostages and pledges of the rest of the whole province, Incontinently went to Carne-fro-aigh, where he was Invested king of Connaught by the 12 Chieftaines of Sile Morie, 12 cowarbbes, and other spiritualls that were accustomed to use the Ceremonies at the tyme of the Investure of the king, remained for a tyme amonst Sile-Morey preying and Destroying such of that country as he supposed to stick to Phelym, and that would not yield him allegiance, and alsoe the chieftest cause of his residence there was Tarrieing for the returne of ffelym and his forces from the north. In the meane tyme ffelym o'Conor thinking with himself that Rory would usurp the rule of Conaught in his absence, he spoke to the red earle & tould him how Rory would warre against him in Conaught and seeke to get the whole government and rule of that province into his own hands by this oportunity he had in theire absence. Whereupon he intended to depart from the earle to defend his lands in Conaught who in his jorny through Ulster and Uriel had not one dayes rest, but continuall assaults and skirmishes untill he came to Granard and to a place called Killenenamas<sup>1</sup> & to the people of his uncle, his mothers brother Shane o'fferrall after great slaughter and Losses of his people, & flight of some of them with theere goods. After his return he advised with his princes and chiefs that were with him in that tumultuous jorny, and in those places Rory o'Conor did constitute others of his one side, that they and every of them should returne to their places, and take and hould them of Rory. During the tyme they should contend together for the preheminnence, with condition that if he had overcome Rory they should hold of him as they did before, & as for his owne fosterfather m'Dermott of Moylorg, seeing it is thought that Rory would not agree with him for any reasonable conditions of peace, hee was content hee should remaine with himself dureing his warrs until he had seen the end and Issue thereof.

The redd earle and Englishmen seeing ffelym and his Conaught men gave them noe assistance aganst theire enemies, and alsoe saw them Depart in that manner, they returned back againe from Cowlerayne to the Castle of Conyre, whome the Scottish and Ulstermen seeing followed them, & as they were at the poynt to meet and give battle, at the first onset William Burk with some of his knights were taken, with the 2 sons of m'aMiles, the red-earle himselve tooke his flight and was chased from thence to Connaught ; after whose comeing into the province his allyes and friends both of the English and Irish flocked to his house, in hopes to be relieved by him from the oppression of Rory o'Connor ; these ensueing persons were the chieftest men of note that had Recourse to him, ffelym o'Connor king of Conaught, Mortagh o'Bryan Prince of Thomond, Mulronye m'Dermott Prince of Moylorg, Gilbert o'Kelly, prince of Imanie, who all were banished out of their possessions. When they were thus mett and Mulrony m'Dermott saw soe many exiled noblemen together in one house, hee recomitted with himseef, was abashed, and said that he could never after be reconed amongst soe many or that number of Deposed chieftaines, but would repaire to teige o'Kelly, by whose Intercession he thought to come in favour & credit with Rory and gett his owen againe, which accordingly was don, upon yeelding of Hostages by the said Mulrony to Rory o'Connor, for keeping his allegiance & fidelity to him.

Hugh Ballagh o'Connor was treacherously killed by Cahall m'Donell o'Connor ; Hugh m'Artt and Dermott m'Symon ne Troye, were in like manner killed by him in revenge of his father that before was killed by the said Dermott. Donell the next day tooke a great prey from the sons of Murtagh, where Magnus m'Magnus and Donell his brother were killed in pursuit thereof, and Tomaltagh m'Donogh was taken captive, after comitting of which exploytes they tooke part and partaketh with the English for their owne defence. When newes came to the eares of ffelym o'Connor of these things, he with a few of his trustyest friends went to the sons of Donell o'Connor, viz. to Rory, Magnus, Cahall, Mortagh, Donogh, John, & Teige, and after some conference had, they with the help of their kinsmen and such others as joyned with them, preyed Bryan o'Dowoye, took another prey from Arteach of Dermott Gall, killed many of his people and burnt his haggards and corne together with their houses, and alsoe tooke another prey from the sons of Cahall o'fflanagan which they tooke in there way to the weare called Kara-Kowla-

Kwirk;<sup>1</sup> they could not drive the prey by reason the great moysture of the bog because the feet of the Cattle waded soe deep in the meere, and also being pursued by a great company in soe much that all the forces of the sones of Cahall and that parts did overtake them, with Mahon m<sup>c</sup>Granell chieftaine of Moynter-eolas, with his kinsmen and followers; m<sup>c</sup>Dermott hearing of the clamorous noyse of the Drivers, and such as were about the said pray comeing to Kara aforesaid, he followed them to Kowlevakar,<sup>2</sup> & seeing the prey stayed & like to be kept by the owners, he did not well like of, but had rather theire prey should be taken by ffelym and his adherents; whereupon he Immediately assisted ffelym notwithstanding the great multitudes that were against him, and upon the sudaine Conor Roe m<sup>c</sup>Hugh Breifne was killed, Mahon m<sup>c</sup>Granell chieftaine of Momtyr-eolas, o'Mullmyay chief of Moyntier-Keruellan,<sup>3</sup> & Discomfitted these that withheld the prey from ffelym, tooke the prey himselve without restitution to the owners, came that night to the abby of Boyle, the next day over Segasse north-easterly, from thence to Kowle o'fflyn,<sup>4</sup> to the Koran & soe to the contry of Lwynie, where ffelym expected his comeing. When Rory o'Conor heard that Mulronye m<sup>c</sup>Dermott had done these great exployts & that he had joyned in company with his fosterson felym, he caused to be assembled from all partes his forces, and with them encamped that night at Ballymore o'fflynn, made little respect of the reverence due to the Church of easse-da-chonne,<sup>5</sup> preyed the monks of the abby of Boyle: Tomaltagh m<sup>c</sup>Morgiessa m<sup>c</sup>Donogh with all his forces and Dependents went to assist ffelym. Dermott Gall went to Crwaghan the king's palace. Teige o'Kelly went to assist Rory, and there followed his promis of allegiance upon Mulronye m<sup>c</sup>Dermott, & being soe joyned together, they pursued ffelym and Mulronye to Letter Loyny<sup>1</sup> and to the borders of the mount of Sliew-gawe<sup>2</sup> and also to the place called Glann-fahrowe<sup>3</sup> where Infinite number of cowes, garrons, and sheep were killed by them, striping gentlewomen that could make noe resistance of their cloathes to their nakid skins; Destroyed and killed without remorse children & Little ones of that jorney. There was not soe much hurt done in them parts before in any man's memory without profit to the doers thereof. Mulronye m<sup>c</sup>Dermott hearing that Dermott Gall sat in the priviledge seat of his auncestors of Carick of Logh Ke, and with Honour conwayed to Crwaghan to enjoy the principallity belonging to himselfe as his right, and that he made havock & killed all his cowes att Glann-fahrowe (as before is specified) he with his househould and such others as he had in readiness for the purpose marked towards Carrick, turned his back to Kara and Synen and the 3 Kerryes,<sup>4</sup> vidzt the Lower Kerry, Kerry May, and Kerry Artie, with their Cattle; it is thought that in these dayes there was not such an assault given or such a prey taken by any man whatsoever, for they made all the province to shake for their feare. The wife of Dermott Gall was taken prisoner at once with the said prey, together with a few other gentlewomen. Dermott Gall after that day never enjoyed any happy Day, besaught Restitution, & upon refusal preyed Moylorg, tooke all the cowes and horses they could meet, notwithstanding Dermott had warning before, which did not avayle him, although he had a great assembly of people before them, and left Moylurg wast and void of cattle, there was noe respect of temporall or church land in that country, their cattle, corne, & other things were snacht eaven from the very alters, and Delivered over to the gallowglasses for their wages.

The towne of Dunmore was burnt by Rory o'Connor, Eoghroy<sup>1</sup> o'Manie was burnt by the said Rory and the Castle thereof fallen Downe. The Cantred of Moynmoy was wasted and Destroyed by Teig o'Kelly, ffelym o'Connor, m<sup>c</sup>Dermott, Tomaltagh m<sup>c</sup>Donogh, & the sons of Donell o'Conor partaketth with the English of Ighter Conaught, & after they accorded peace with them, they Destroyed Tyrenna,<sup>2</sup> Tyreneaghtynn, Moynty<sup>r</sup> Kregghan<sup>3</sup> and the Demeasne of Donmore called Con vakney. Richard Burk earle of Ulster called the red-earle remayned this yeare without force or power in any the parts of Ireland. Then raigned many Diseases generally throughout the whole kingdome, a great loss of the Inhabitants, great scarcity of victuals, great slaughter of people, and in Summer ugly and fowle weather. Hugh o'Donell prince of Tyre Conell came to the lands of Carbyre in Conaught and Destroyed all that contry by the advice of his wife the Daughter of Magnus o'Connor, & came herself with a great route of gallowglasses and tooke all the spoyles of the Churches of Dromkiew without respect of church or churchmen of that place. The castle of Sligeagh was taken and fallen down by o'Donnell of that jorny.

OF IRELAND.

THIS Society, instituted to preserve, examine, and illustrate all Ancient Monuments of the History, Language, Arts, Manners, and Customs of the past, as connected with Ireland, was founded as THE KILKENNY ARCHÆOLOGICAL SOCIETY in 1849. Her Majesty the Queen, on December 27th, 1869, was graciously pleased to order that it be called THE ROYAL HISTORICAL AND ARCHÆOLOGICAL ASSOCIATION OF IRELAND, and was further pleased to sanction the adoption of the title of THE ROYAL SOCIETY OF ANTIQUARIES OF IRELAND on the 25th March, 1890.

The Society holds Four General Meetings in each year, in Dublin and in the several Provinces of Ireland, when Papers on Historical and Archæological subjects are read, Fellows and Members elected, Objects of Antiquity exhibited, and Excursions made to places of Antiquarian interest. The Council meets monthly at 7, St. Stephen's-green, Dublin. Provincial and Local Secretaries are appointed, whose duty it is to inform the Secretary of all Antiquarian Remains discovered in their districts, to investigate Local History and Traditions, and to give notice of all injury likely to be inflicted on Monuments of Antiquity, and Ancient Memorials of the Dead, in order that the influence of the Society may be exerted to preserve them. A Museum has been formed at Kilkenny.

The PUBLICATIONS of the Society comprise the Journal and the "Extra Volume" Series. The "Antiquarian Handbook" Series was commenced in 1895.

The Journal, now issued Quarterly, from the year 1849 to 1895, inclusive, forming twenty-six Volumes (royal 8vo), with more than 2000 illustrations, contains a great mass of information on the History and Antiquities of Ireland.

Vol. I. of the First Series of the Journal (1849-51) is out of print. Vols. II. and III., First Series (1852-55); Vols. I., II., III., IV., V., and VI., Second Series (1856-67); Vol. I., Third Series (1868-69), of which only a few copies remain on hands; Vols. I., II., III., IV., V., VI., VII., VIII., IX., Fourth Series (1870-89), can be supplied to Members at the average rate of 8s. per Yearly Part.

The Extra Volumes are supplied to all Fellows, on the roll at date of issue, free, and may be obtained by Members, at the prices fixed by the Council.

The "Extra Volumes" for the years 1853-77 are out of print, except the following, which are still to be had by Members:—

1868—"The Social State of the Southern and Eastern Counties in the Reigns of Henry VIII. and Elizabeth." Edited by H. F. Hore and Rev. James Graves. (Part I. out of print), Part II. 2s. 6d.

1869—"The Social State, &c." Part III. 2s. 6d.

1874—"Christian Inscriptions in the Irish Language." Edited by Miss M. Stokes. Part IV. only (the other Parts out of print), with 13 Illustrations and 23 Plates. 5s.

1888-89—"The Rude Stone Monuments of Co. Sligo and the Island of Achill." By Colonel Wood-Martin. 7s. 6d.

1890-91—"The Account Roll of the Priory of the Holy Trinity, Dublin, 1337-1346, with the Middle English Moral Play, The Pride of Life, from the original in the Christ Church Collection in the Public Record Office, Dublin." Edited by James Mills, M.R.I.A. (with fac-simile of original MS.). 7s. 6d.

1892—"Inis Muiredach, now Inismurray and its Antiquities." By W. F. Wakeman, Hon. F.R.S.A. (With Map and 89 Illustrations.) 7s. 6d.

The Volume for 1893-1895—"The Annals of Clonmacnoise," from the MSS. in the Royal Irish Academy and Trinity College, Dublin. Edited, with Introduction and Notes, by Rev. Denis Murphy, S.J., M.R.I.A., F.R.S.A., is now ready. Price 10s. to Members.

The foregoing may be had from the Publishers, Messrs. HODGES, FIGGIS, & Co., 104, Grafton-street, Dublin, or Messrs. WILLIAMS & NORGATE, London and Edinburgh, including the "Antiquarian Handbook Series," of which No. 1, "Tara and Glendalough," price 6d., has been issued.

All who are interested in Antiquarian research are invited to join the Society; and may notify their intentions either to the Secretaries, 7, St. Stephen's-green, Dublin, to the Hon. Provincial and Local Secretaries, or any Member of the Society.

Subscriptions may be paid by Members' Orders on their Bankers to credit of the Society. Form of Order supplied by Secretary and Treasurer, to whom also Subscriptions may be paid direct, by Crossed Cheque or Postal Order.
